Roaring Norther Cripples Texas, Strands Motorists

School Children Also Are Marooned When Buses Stall — Panhandle Roads are Iced, Hurricane Winds Are Reported

Amarillo, Tex., Jan. 23 (AP)—A shallow but vicious norther—packing a heavyweight punch—blew from the Panhandle-plains area deep into the Texas midlands today.

Power and telephone lines and poles sagged and snapped under the weight of ice and snow in the Panhandle where a dangerous glaze of ice made driving extremely hazardous. The snowfall ranged from 2-3 inches at Lubbock to around 10 inches at Akin.

Hundreds of motorists sought refuge in farm homes already crowded in some instances by school children who couldn't make it home after buses stalled in deep snow-drifts.

The highway patrol warned that "extremely hazardous driving conditions" existed from the top of the Panhandle to extreme east Texas and the upper Gulf coast. Where there was no ice or snow in the region, drenching rains and winds of almost hurricane force had battered the countryside.

Except for windows blown out by high winds at Borger and damage to communications and power facilities, there was little reported property loss.

No stormy or severe cold weather was reported in other parts of the country. However, there were some other wet spots.

Rain Is Widespread

Rain fell from eastern Texas through Arkansas and Missouri with showers and thundershowers in the lower Mississippi valley. Light snow fell over the western Great Lakes and upper Mississippi valley into eastern sections of the Northern Plains States. Rain continued in the far northwest and rain mixed with snow hit parts of the Northern Rockies. Fog and drizzle extended from southern Iowa through the eastern Great Lakes area. Freezing drizzle was reported in lower Michigan.

Temperatures outside the Texas storm belt were generally around seasonal levels.

At least 13 towns shivered in isolation last night in the ice-locked, snowbound Panhandle. Blasting winds, and driving snow extended from Dalhart in the Panhandle as far south as Dallas at 3:30 a. m. Dallas is about 500 miles southeast of Dalhart where the norther blew into the state early yesterday on winds up to 80 miles per hour.

All Travel Blocked

All travel was blocked at Plainview after more than 8 inches of snow fell yesterday and deep drifts barred highway travel between Plainview and Amarillo. Broken telephone lines and power lines isolated Hale Center, Floydada, Silverton, Kress, Tulia, Olton and Lockney in the Plainview area. Bus drivers said heavy snow clogged highways west and northwest of Lubbock toward Clovis, N. M.

Plan Elimination Of Danger Turn in Kerhonkson Area

Supervisor Craft, Residents Get Action After Pressing for Road Change

The Ulster County Highway Department "anticipates early action" to eliminate a dangerous right angle turn in Kerhonkson where the Minnewaska Trail and Main street meet, James F. Loughran, county highway superintendent said today.

Residents of the Kerhonkson area have been agitating for some time to eliminate the dangerous intersection following the death in October, 1951 of Isidore Siegel, Kerhonkson merchant, who was fatally injured by a runaway car as he stood in his store polishing his glasses.

To Study Elimination

This agitation, plus efforts and insistance of Supervisor Lawrence D. Craft, brought action and the problem was placed with the highway committee of the Board of Supervisors for study and advisement.

Land from three property owners in the area will be necessary for the change, it was reported, and appraisers recently inspected these.

The Board of Supervisors' committee on rights of way is scheduled to meet again Monday to discuss the proposed project.

Schifano Indicted For Nusco Death

Faces Manslaughter, First Degree for Alleged Slaying of Woman

A grand jury this morning in Supreme court returned an indictment charging Samuel Schifano, 62, of Brooklyn with manslaughter, first degree, for the alleged slaying of Mrs. Emelia Nusco, 52, at her home near Highland on June 20, 1952.

Schifano had been indicted on a charge of murder, first degree, by a prior grand jury. A motion was made by Senator Harry Gitleson of New York, with Charles F. Gaffney of counsel, for inspection of the grand jury minutes and for a dismissal of the first degree murder charge. Judge John M. Cashin granted the motion to dismiss the indictment and directed that the matter be resubmitted.

Gaffney Objects

Schifano was represented by Gaffney in court and a plea of innocent to the charge was entered.

Gaffney objected to the indictment being transferred to county court for trial since Judge Cashin had ruled on the prior motions for dismissal of the charge and had denied the request for inspection of the grand jury minutes. Justice MacAffer however granted the motion of District Attorney Howard C. St. John to transfer the matter to county court for disposition. Bail in the sum of $10,000 cash or $20,000 property was suggested by the district attorney and Gaffney objected on the grounds it was excessive. He said Schifano lived in Kings county but also spent time in Ulster county. There is now pending a charge against Schifano in Federal Court under the Alcoholic Beverage Law in which bail has been posted. Gaffney said this should be considered in fixing the bail in the manslaughter case.

Bail Set at $7,500

Justice MacAffer fixed bail at $7,500 cash or $15,000 property bail and remanded the defendant to jail pending supplying such bail.

An exception was taken by Gaffney to the amount of bail and also to the transfer of the case to county court. He asked for 30 days to make further motions relating to the indictment and that was granted since Senator Gittleson is now engaged in the legislature and time is an element.

26 Applications Made For Police Exams

City Clerk Bernhardt S. Kramer said he had received 26 filled-out applications up until noon today for the civil service examination Feb. 14 for appointment of about 15 local patrolmen.

Today is the deadline date for filing the applications. More than 50 application blanks have been distributed. The new patrolmen will be appointed as soon as an eligibility list is available so that the local department may operate on a 40-hour week schedule.

Applicants had until 5 p. m. today to file completed forms.

Kennan Explains Remarks to Dulles; Denies Any Barbs

Ambassador Says Speech Was Cleared Prior to Delivery at Scranton

Washington, Jan. 23 (AP)—Ambassador George Kennan is understood to have written Secretary of State Dulles a note explaining that a speech Kennan made last Friday night was not designed as criticism of Dulles' testimony the day before to a Senate committee.

Dulles is expected to talk with the veteran diplomat, an expert on Soviet affairs, in a few days to determine whether and to what extent there may be a basic difference between the two men on what kind of policy the United States should have toward Soviet satellite nations. He is known to have received Kennan's note.

In his testimony before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee a week ago yesterday, Dulles said the policy which aims only at containing Russian expansion is "an unsound policy." And he expressed conviction that a positive policy for the liberation of satellite countries must be developed.

'Can Be Peaceful'

"It must be and can be a peaceful process," he said. "Those who do not believe that results can be obtained by moral pressures, by the weight of propaganda, just do not know what they are talking about."

The following night, in a speech at Scranton, Pa., Kennan said "it is right that individual Americans" should promote their beliefs and he spoke of the ultimate victory of "the competitive power of freedom in the struggle of ideas."

Kennan argued, however, against "doing anything at the governmental level that purports to affect directly the governmental system in another country." He declared that would be inconsistent with America's international obligations, its diplomatic relations and its membership in the United Nations and could "involve us in heavy responsibilities."

Conflict Pointed Out

After Kennan spoke, news reports pointed out an apparent policy conflict between his ideas and those of the new State Department head.

Upon learning that this contrast was being drawn, Kennan is understood to have sent a note to Dulles explaining that his speech had been written and cleared in

President, Aides Hold 1st Session

2-Hour Meeting Brings No Public Disclosure of What Took Place or Was Discussed

Okay Is Awaited

Ike Nominates Wilson, Who Will Sell His GM Stock

Washington, Jan. 23 (AP)—President Eisenhower and his cabinet held their first formal meeting today — a two-hour-and-ten-minute session from which the new administration's high command departed under orders not to talk.

Vice President Nixon told reporters it is the understanding that there will be no mention, even of general subject matters, about what happens in cabinet meetings.

Nixon did say, however, that there will be a meeting of Republican legislators and the President some time next week. He said the date has not been set.

First out of the cabinet meeting today was Mrs. Oveta Culp Hobby, federal security administrator.

"How was your first cabinet meeting?" a reporter asked.

She, smiled, wraggled a shushing finger in front of her lips and replied:

"Don't do that to me."

Secretary of Labor Durkin rushed by, declaring "I have nothing to tell you" in response to the same question.

Nixon Cites Policy

When Nixon came along he was asked: "Is the policy to be that no one who participates in cabinet meetings is to discuss what goes on, even as to the general subject matter?"

"That's the understanding," the vice president replied.

Nixon said an understanding as to a rule of silence was reached when Eisenhower met with his cabinet in New York before his inauguration.

To a "How did it go?" Mutual Security Administrator Harold E. Stassen responded: "Fine."

Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield told reporters to see White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty.

He said hew as assuming Hagerty would have some sort of statement on the cabinet meeting.

Eisenhower himself got to the office at 8:27 a. m. (EST) and cabinet members began arriving around 9:45 for their ten o'clock meeting.

Members stood around and chatted for a few moments, waiting for the last arrivals, then shut the door and got down to business.

Wilson Clearance Awaited

With Charles E. Wilson not yet cleared into the official family, the Defense Department was represented by W. J. McNeil.

McNeil, an assistant secretary of defense in the Truman administration, is now the department's ranking official and acting secretary.

The first big problem to confront the new Republican regime may have been solved last night when Wilson, at a White House meeting with Eisenhower, agreed to dispose of his 2½ million dollars worth of General Motors stock. The President then formally nominated him to be secretary of defense.

Apparently Ends Barrier

Wilson's decision to get rid of the stock to clear an apparent legal barrier to his winning Senate approval brought predictions from some influential senators that he would be confirmed.

But there were indications from other quarters that a question would be raised as to whether the former G. M. president has other financial interests which might still stand in the way.

The men Eisenhower selected for the eight other cabinet posts already have been confirmed by the Senate and have been sworn

Man Serving 10 Years at Green Haven Tells $100,000 'Cross' Cause of War

Got Work as Boss

Tells How He, Friends 'Muscled' Ways Into Waterfront Posts

A New York waterfront mobster, now serving a prison term, testified in New York yesterday that he once came to Ulster county to hide from gang violence and the law.

Gray-haired, bespectaled Francis Smith, still serving a seven-and-a-half to 10-year term at Green Haven State Prison, Stormville, for hijacking, testified at a hearing to air waterfront rackets, that he was on the run because of mob warfare, The Associated Press said.

Smith said a $100,000 fur hijacking doublecross on a west side New York pier touched off waterfront gang warfare and split New York and New Jersey dock mobsters. His flight, he said, ultimately brought him to Marlborough.

Went to New Jersey

After a close call from being "rubbed out" Smith said he "holed up" in Cliffside, N. J., where he claimed, "Frank Borrelli, the chief of police there, told us we could stay with the understanding there would be no trouble, and he would let us know if anybody came."

To this Borrelli issued a hot denial from Cliffside last night, saying of Smith: "I don't even know the bum. I never heard of him. The name doesn't even ring a bell. I think he's just trying to get time off on his sentence."

In his story before the New York State Crime Commission, now sitting to bare waterfront rackets, which cost the multi-billion dollar shipping industry about 350 million dollars a year, Smith told how he and two friends "muscled" their way in as bosses on the west side pier.

Had Shipment Marked

He and his pals, Smith said, in 1935 had a Russian fur shipment marked for hijacking as it was being loaded onto a truck, but minutes before they moved to seize the furs, he said, "Four other guys beat us to it."

Smith said his gang traced the furs to Frank (Sonny) Campbell, a member of the old "Arsenal Gang," called that because they supplied guns for underworld characters.

"Campbell said they (the furs) were in a barn 35 miles away," Smith said. "We went up there and we were told the Jersey mob had taken the furs from the farm."

Smith said the rival mob offered his gang a cut of the fur robbery. He said they refused the cut, but didn't say why.

This incident, the witness said, led to several unsolved mobster murders.

Following the fur hijacking, Smith said:

For Control of Piers

"The waterfront war broke out over that. The mob split up and was known as the Jersey mob and the New York mob."

"For control of the piers?" he was asked.

"Yes, sir," Smith replied.

After being wounded in a lower Manhattan gun battle with rival mobsters, Smith said, he kept away from the docks for quite a while and finally was locked up for violation of parole. He had been paroled from Comstock Prison.

Smith was graphic in his description of an attempt to murder him in 1941.

Two men whom he named as John (Cockeye) Dunn and Andrew Sheridan came into a West 26th street bar and "put the finger" on him, he said.

"They (Dunn and Sheridan) took me to the front of the bar," Smith said. "I seen a fellow step in with a pair of dark glasses and gloves and a pistol.

"Right away I figured it was for me and they thought I would run. Instead of running, I went at him to try and get the gun.

"The first shot hit me in the ear, the second hit me in the shoulder, and I got the gun."

Wrestled With Man

Smith said he wrestled with the

Stay After School Is New Rule for Slow KHS Pupils

Sports and Other Activities Are Out for Those Who Can't Make Good Marks

Failures at Kingston High School have prompted the board of education to adopt six rules calling for students to apply themselves more honestly and to seek help from their teachers.

This was announced today by Theron L. Culver, acting principal, who said the new regulations will go into effect February 9, two weeks after the beginning of the second term.

The Six Rules

Culver said the six rules governing slow students, approved by the board of education, are:

1. Every student failing shall be required to stay after school with the teacher of the failed subject.

2. The student shall continue to stay until such time as the teacher is satisfied that the student is doing adequate work.

3. Bus students shall be required to stay and take the late bus home.

4. If no regular transportation is available, the parents should arrange to provide transportation.

5. Students failing two or more subjects shall be refused participation in clubs, school newspaper work, yearbook, athletics, and organized class activities. Failing students will be reinstated when teachers certify that the work is satisfactory.

6. Failing students will not be excused from these requirements because of work. Students who do not wish to jeopardize their work will do satisfactory work in school. The length of time a student is required to stay will depend on the teacher's judgment of the student's need.

Aim of Plan

Culver said parents should discuss school matters with their children and urge them to main-

Horticulturists Conclude Annual Eastern Meeting

Sessions Have Been Held in City Since 1936; Strawberry Study Requested

The 1953 annual Eastern Meeting of the New York State Horticultural Society closed early this afternoon at the state armory in Kingston after three days of sessions devoted to improving the production and marketing of apples and other fruit.

The Eastern Meeting of the society, whose membership comprises more than 1,000 growers from all over the state, has been held in this city yearly since 1936. It follows by one week the organization's annual meeting in Rochester and is designed primarily for the approximately one-half its membership that comes from eastern New York.

In a business session Thursday afternoon, the eastern growers adopted a resolution calling upon the State College of Agriculture and the state experiment station to initiate a program of research into the causes of what they termed an "alarming" decrease in strawberry yield.

Acreage Has Decreased

Wilson Stock Sale Is Not Disturbing

Stock Market Would Take Offering in Stride, Officials Say

New York, Jan. 23 (AP)—Financial circles here said today that sale by Charles E. Wilson of his 39,000 shares of General Motors stock probably would cause hardly a ripple in the stock market.

Officials of member firms of the New York Stock Exchange said the stock held by the nominee for defense secretary could be quickly absorbed in normal trading without disturbing prices. One commented that "it probably would be snapped up in five minutes."

They noted that General Motors has more than 88 million shares outstanding, and Wilson's holdings amount to less than a tenth of one per cent. At current market quotations, they would be worth about two and one-half million dollars.

There are several ways in which he might dispose of the stock.

One is through sale on the floor of the stock exchange, probably in what is called a special offering,

Bellefonte Convicts Quit Under Governor's Order

Bellefonte, Pa., Jan. 23 (AP)—A band of 325 rebel convicts, mindful of a tightening ring of heavily armed state police and unnerved by the roar of National Guard fighter planes overhead, surrendered unconditionally last night to the "get tough" orders of Gov. John S. Fine.

The rebels released six guard hostages shortly before 7 o'clock and then filed meekly back into their cells from the barricaded building they had turned into a fortress.

None of the hostages had been harmed, although one was near the point of exhaustion from his 72-hour ordeal.

The convicts — a holdout segment of a riot that started last Monday—tossed out through the shattered windows of the cellblock the eight revolvers, five hundreds rounds of ammunition and tear gas equipment that had been one of the main concerns of the prison officials during the insurrection.

Their surrender made unnecessary a planned attack on the cellblock strong point by state policemen and alerted National Guard units.

Earlier in the afternoon while planes were buzzing the building, the prisoners dropped a note through a barred window asking to see the Catholic chaplain, the Rev. Richard Walsh. When Father Walsh went to the wall of the building, the men shouted down that they were willing to give up if state officials would agree to an earlier offer that there would be no reprisals for the riot. The governor made that offer two days ago and it had been accepted by the men in two adjacent cell blocks.

State Atty. Gen. Robert E. Woodside, after a conference with the governor, replied in a note that "only an unconditional surrender will be accepted." He ordered the prisoners to turn over their guns and ammunition to the priest or to the hostage guards who were to be released immediately.

Shortly thereafter the convicts shouted they were willing to give up and started dropping the guns and ammunition from the windows. The guards then emerged "without a scratch" from the building. Five were taken to their home and one, Paul Gingher, was removed to the prison hospital. He was not injured but appeared suffering from nervous exhaustion.

State police then converged on the building and the convicts returned without a word to their cells.

One of the hostage guards, Melvin E. Williams, 46, said at his home last night, he believed the turning point of the situation was the psychological effect of the droning planes overhead.

"Tension was mounting while they were trying to negotiate," he said, adding that throughout their confinement the six guards were treated well and that none of the rebels had made any threats.

London Is Getting Riled About 6,000 Smog Deaths

London, Jan. 23 (AP)—Normally easy-going London is finally getting riled up about one of its long-time winter complaints—the city's famous pea soup fogs.

In the last three months, four big sulphur-laden smog blankets have led to an estimated 6,000 deaths and seriously crippled communications in the world's biggest capital.

During one week in December, when the worst fog in recent memory muffled the city, the death rate jumped by 2,000 persons—more than doubling the normal figure for the period.

Most of the deaths have been attributed to bronchitis, pneumonia and heart ailments touched off by the fog. The government says it is probing the fatalities with "the gravest urgency."

A fog costs big money, too. On each of 16 dark days thus far this winter, the big international airlines using London's two main airports lost an estimated 60,000 pounds ($168,000) through delays and diversions.

The National Smoke Abatement Society, a voluntary organization supported by hundreds of municipalities, has called for a full-scale investigation of the fogs.

The society has been studying reports of a U. S. government investigation in the 1948 smog disaster at Onora, Pa. The U. S. embassy here also has offered to supply copies of the official report to members of parliament.

Sabre Jets Down 4 MIGs And Damage 7 in Battles

Seoul, Jan. 23 (AP)—Allied Sabre jets destroyed four Communist MIG-15s and damaged seven in clear skies high over northwest Korea today, the U. S. Fifth Air Force reported.

It brought to 15 the number of Russian-built jets knocked down in three days. At least 13 have been damaged. One Red jet was probably destroyed Tuesday before resumption of large scale air battles.

Capt. Delhpin P. Overton, III, of Andres, S. C., was credited with bagging his fourth MIG in three days—the hottest record in the current series of dogfights.

He got his MIG today—only one more to go to become an ace—on his 148th mission. Overton had flown 145 missions, 100 of them in F-84 Thunderjet fighter-bombers, before downing his first MIG Wednesday. He has two missions to fly to complete his second tour.

Also getting his fourth kill was Lt. Harold E. Fisher, Jr., of North Las Vegas, Nev.

The Sabres were up at daybreak to shield allied fighter-bombers farther south at Communist supply lines and battlefront positions. The Sabres intercepted one flight of Red jets streaking southward but those MIGS turned tail and fled.

The Sabres had better luck in the afternoon.

Fighter-bomber pilots reported wrecking 90 Communist vehicles and destroying a locomotive and ten boxcars. In the night 14 U.S. superforts cascaded bombs on a railroad yard at Yangdok astride the Reds' east-west supply route across the narrow, 90-mile waist of North Korea.

The B-29s also hit a North Korean military staff establishment and troop center at Yongpong and a supply area at Sonsang, both within a 30-mile radius of Yangdok.

Grenade-hurling South Korean troops charged up to the crest of big Nori Hill on the western front today and blasted Chinese positions one hour and 20 minutes, then withdrew.

An Eighth Army spokesman said the Republic of Korea (ROK) infantrymen killed at least 85 Reds in the furious hit-run raid. It was preceded by air strikes and a concentrated artillery barrage. Tanks covered the ROKs' flanks.

Big Nori, scene of heavy fighting early last December, overlooks the Imjim river valley on one of the historic invasion routes to Seoul. The hill is roughly 50 miles northeast of the Republican capital.

The action was among several allied attacks on Communist positions on the western and eastern fronts. On the central front allied tanks banged away at Chinese bunkers and gun positions.

AP correspondent Forrest Edwards reported from the extreme western front that an allied patrol surprised a group of Chinese and killed at least seven in hand-to-hand fighting.

Bellefonte Convicts Quit Under Governor's Order

Bellefonte, Pa., Jan. 23 (AP)—A band of 325 rebel convicts, mindful of a tightening ring of heavily armed state police and unnerved by the roar of National Guard fighter planes overhead, surrendered unconditionally last night to the "get tough" orders of Gov. John S. Fine.

The rebels released six guard hostages shortly before 7 o'clock and then filed meekly back into their cells from the barricaded building they had turned into a fortress.

None of the hostages had been harmed, although one was near the point of exhaustion from his 72-hour ordeal.

The convicts — a holdout segment of a riot that started last Monday—tossed out through the shattered windows of the cellblock the eight revolvers, five hundreds rounds of ammunition and tear gas equipment that had been one of the main concerns of the prison officials during the insurrection.

Their surrender made unnecessary a planned attack on the cellblock strong point by state policemen and alerted National Guard units.

Earlier in the afternoon while planes were buzzing the building, the prisoners dropped a note through a barred window asking to see the Catholic chaplain, the Rev. Richard Walsh. When Father Walsh went to the wall of the building, the men shouted down that they were willing to give up if state officials would agree to an earlier offer that there would be no reprisals for the riot. The governor made that offer two days ago and it had been accepted by the men in two adjacent cell blocks.

State Atty. Gen. Robert E. Woodside, after a conference with the governor, replied in a note that "only an unconditional surrender will be accepted." He ordered the prisoners to turn over their guns and ammunition to the priest or to the hostage guards who were to be released immediately.

Shortly thereafter the convicts shouted they were willing to give up and started dropping the guns and ammunition from the windows. The guards then emerged "without a scratch" from the building. Five were taken to their home and one, Paul Gingher, was removed to the prison hospital. He was not injured but appeared suffering from nervous exhaustion.

State police then converged on the building and the convicts returned without a word to their cells.

One of the hostage guards, Melvin E. Williams, 46, said at his home last night, he believed the turning point of the situation was the psychological effect of the droning planes overhead.

"Tension was mounting while they were trying to negotiate," he said, adding that throughout their confinement the six guards were treated well and that none of the rebels had made any threats.

President, Aides Hold 1st Session

2-Hour Meeting Brings No Public Disclosure of What Took Place or Was Discussed

Okay Is Awaited

Ike Nominates Wilson, Who Will Sell His GM Stock

Washington, Jan. 23 (AP)—President Eisenhower and his cabinet held their first formal meeting today — a two-hour-and-ten-minute session from which the new administration's high command departed under orders not to talk.

Vice President Nixon told reporters it is the understanding that there will be no mention, even of general subject matters, about what happens in cabinet meetings.

Nixon did say, however, that there will be a meeting of Republican legislators and the President some time next week. He said the date has not been set.

First out of the cabinet meeting today was Mrs. Oveta Culp Hobby, federal security administrator.

"How was your first cabinet meeting?" a reporter asked.

She, smiled, wraggled a shushing finger in front of her lips and replied:

"Don't do that to me."

Secretary of Labor Durkin rushed by, declaring "I have nothing to tell you" in response to the same question.

Nixon Cites Policy

When Nixon came along he was asked: "Is the policy to be that no one who participates in cabinet meetings is to discuss what goes on, even as to the general subject matter?"

"That's the understanding," the vice president replied.

Nixon said an understanding as to a rule of silence was reached when Eisenhower met with his cabinet in New York before his inauguration.

To a "How did it go?" Mutual Security Administrator Harold E. Stassen responded: "Fine."

Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield told reporters to see White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty.

He said hew as assuming Hagerty would have some sort of statement on the cabinet meeting.

Eisenhower himself got to the office at 8:27 a. m. (EST) and cabinet members began arriving around 9:45 for their ten o'clock meeting.

Members stood around and chatted for a few moments, waiting for the last arrivals, then shut the door and got down to business.

Wilson Clearance Awaited

With Charles E. Wilson not yet cleared into the official family, the Defense Department was represented by W. J. McNeil.

McNeil, an assistant secretary of defense in the Truman administration, is now the department's ranking official and acting secretary.

The first big problem to confront the new Republican regime may have been solved last night when Wilson, at a White House meeting with Eisenhower, agreed to dispose of his 2½ million dollars worth of General Motors stock. The President then formally nominated him to be secretary of defense.

Apparently Ends Barrier

Wilson's decision to get rid of the stock to clear an apparent legal barrier to his winning Senate approval brought predictions from some influential senators that he would be confirmed.

But there were indications from other quarters that a question would be raised as to whether the former G. M. president has other financial interests which might still stand in the way.

The men Eisenhower selected for the eight other cabinet posts already have been confirmed by the Senate and have been sworn

London Is Getting Riled About 6,000 Smog Deaths

London, Jan. 23 (AP)—Normally easy-going London is finally getting riled up about one of its long-time winter complaints—the city's famous pea soup fogs.

In the last three months, four big sulphur-laden smog blankets have led to an estimated 6,000 deaths and seriously crippled communications in the world's biggest capital.

During one week in December, when the worst fog in recent memory muffled the city, the death rate jumped by 2,000 persons—more than doubling the normal figure for the period.

Most of the deaths have been attributed to bronchitis, pneumonia and heart ailments touched off by the fog. The government says it is probing the fatalities with "the gravest urgency."

A fog costs big money, too. On each of 16 dark days thus far this winter, the big international airlines using London's two main airports lost an estimated 60,000 pounds ($168,000) through delays and diversions.

The National Smoke Abatement Society, a voluntary organization supported by hundreds of municipalities, has called for a full-scale investigation of the fogs.

The society has been studying reports of a U. S. government investigation in the 1948 smog disaster at Onora, Pa. The U. S. embassy here also has offered to supply copies of the official report to members of parliament.

Docks' Mobster Hid in Ulster To Escape Gang Vengeance, He Says Before State Crime Unit

Man Serving 10 Years at Green Haven Tells $100,000 'Cross' Cause of War

Got Work as Boss

Tells How He, Friends 'Muscled' Ways Into Waterfront Posts

A New York waterfront mobster, now serving a prison term, testified in New York yesterday that he once came to Ulster county to hide from gang violence and the law.

Gray-haired, bespectaled Francis Smith, still serving a seven-and-a-half to 10-year term at Green Haven State Prison, Stormville, for hijacking, testified at a hearing to air waterfront rackets, that he was on the run because of mob warfare, The Associated Press said.

Smith said a $100,000 fur hijacking doublecross on a west side New York pier touched off waterfront gang warfare and split New York and New Jersey dock mobsters. His flight, he said, ultimately brought him to Marlborough.

Went to New Jersey

After a close call from being "rubbed out" Smith said he "holed up" in Cliffside, N. J., where he claimed, "Frank Borrelli, the chief of police there, told us we could stay with the understanding there would be no trouble, and he would let us know if anybody came."

To this Borrelli issued a hot denial from Cliffside last night, saying of Smith: "I don't even know the bum. I never heard of him. The name doesn't even ring a bell. I think he's just trying to get time off on his sentence."

In his story before the New York State Crime Commission, now sitting to bare waterfront rackets, which cost the multi-billion dollar shipping industry about 350 million dollars a year, Smith told how he and two friends "muscled" their way in as bosses on the west side pier.

Had Shipment Marked

He and his pals, Smith said, in 1935 had a Russian fur shipment marked for hijacking as it was being loaded onto a truck, but minutes before they moved to seize the furs, he said, "Four other guys beat us to it."

Smith said his gang traced the furs to Frank (Sonny) Campbell, a member of the old "Arsenal Gang," called that because they supplied guns for underworld characters.

"Campbell said they (the furs) were in a barn 35 miles away," Smith said. "We went up there and we were told the Jersey mob had taken the furs from the farm."

Smith said the rival mob offered his gang a cut of the fur robbery. He said they refused the cut, but didn't say why.

This incident, the witness said, led to several unsolved mobster murders.

Following the fur hijacking, Smith said:

For Control of Piers

"The waterfront war broke out over that. The mob split up and was known as the Jersey mob and the New York mob."

"For control of the piers?" he was asked.

"Yes, sir," Smith replied.

After being wounded in a lower Manhattan gun battle with rival mobsters, Smith said, he kept away from the docks for quite a while and finally was locked up for violation of parole. He had been paroled from Comstock Prison.

Smith was graphic in his description of an attempt to murder him in 1941.

Two men whom he named as John (Cockeye) Dunn and Andrew Sheridan came into a West 26th street bar and "put the finger" on him, he said.

"They (Dunn and Sheridan) took me to the front of the bar," Smith said. "I seen a fellow step in with a pair of dark glasses and gloves and a pistol.

"Right away I figured it was for me and they thought I would run. Instead of running, I went at him to try and get the gun.

"The first shot hit me in the ear, the second hit me in the shoulder, and I got the gun."

Wrestled With Man

Smith said he wrestled with the

Stay After School Is New Rule for Slow KHS Pupils

Sports and Other Activities Are Out for Those Who Can't Make Good Marks

Failures at Kingston High School have prompted the board of education to adopt six rules calling for students to apply themselves more honestly and to seek help from their teachers.

This was announced today by Theron L. Culver, acting principal, who said the new regulations will go into effect February 9, two weeks after the beginning of the second term.

The Six Rules

Culver said the six rules governing slow students, approved by the board of education, are:

1. Every student failing shall be required to stay after school with the teacher of the failed subject.

2. The student shall continue to stay until such time as the teacher is satisfied that the student is doing adequate work.

3. Bus students shall be required to stay and take the late bus home.

4. If no regular transportation is available, the parents should arrange to provide transportation.

5. Students failing two or more subjects shall be refused participation in clubs, school newspaper work, yearbook, athletics, and organized class activities. Failing students will be reinstated when teachers certify that the work is satisfactory.

6. Failing students will not be excused from these requirements because of work. Students who do not wish to jeopardize their work will do satisfactory work in school. The length of time a student is required to stay will depend on the teacher's judgment of the student's need.

Aim of Plan

Culver said parents should discuss school matters with their children and urge them to main-

Wilson Stock Sale Is Not Disturbing

Stock Market Would Take Offering in Stride, Officials Say

New York, Jan. 23 (AP)—Financial circles here said today that sale by Charles E. Wilson of his 39,000 shares of General Motors stock probably would cause hardly a ripple in the stock market.

Officials of member firms of the New York Stock Exchange said the stock held by the nominee for defense secretary could be quickly absorbed in normal trading without disturbing prices. One commented that "it probably would be snapped up in five minutes."

They noted that General Motors has more than 88 million shares outstanding, and Wilson's holdings amount to less than a tenth of one per cent. At current market quotations, they would be worth about two and one-half million dollars.

There are several ways in which he might dispose of the stock.

One is through sale on the floor of the stock exchange, probably in what is called a special offering,

Horticulturists Conclude Annual Eastern Meeting

Sessions Have Been Held in City Since 1936; Strawberry Study Requested

The 1953 annual Eastern Meeting of the New York State Horticultural Society closed early this afternoon at the state armory in Kingston after three days of sessions devoted to improving the production and marketing of apples and other fruit.

The Eastern Meeting of the society, whose membership comprises more than 1,000 growers from all over the state, has been held in this city yearly since 1936. It follows by one week the organization's annual meeting in Rochester and is designed primarily for the approximately one-half its membership that comes from eastern New York.

In a business session Thursday afternoon, the eastern growers adopted a resolution calling upon the State College of Agriculture and the state experiment station to initiate a program of research into the causes of what they termed an "alarming" decrease in strawberry yield.

Acreage Has Decreased

Sabre Jets Down 4 MIGs And Damage 7 in Battles

Seoul, Jan. 23 (AP)—Allied Sabre jets destroyed four Communist MIG-15s and damaged seven in clear skies high over northwest Korea today, the U. S. Fifth Air Force reported.

It brought to 15 the number of Russian-built jets knocked down in three days. At least 13 have been damaged. One Red jet was probably destroyed Tuesday before resumption of large scale air battles.

Capt. Delhpin P. Overton, III, of Andres, S. C., was credited with bagging his fourth MIG in three days—the hottest record in the current series of dogfights.

He got his MIG today—only one more to go to become an ace—on his 148th mission. Overton had flown 145 missions, 100 of them in F-84 Thunderjet fighter-bombers, before downing his first MIG Wednesday. He has two missions to fly to complete his second tour.

Also getting his fourth kill was Lt. Harold E. Fisher, Jr., of North Las Vegas, Nev.

The Sabres were up at daybreak to shield allied fighter-bombers farther south at Communist supply lines and battlefront positions. The Sabres intercepted one flight of Red jets streaking southward but those MIGS turned tail and fled.

The Sabres had better luck in the afternoon.

Fighter-bomber pilots reported wrecking 90 Communist vehicles and destroying a locomotive and ten boxcars. In the night 14 U.S. superforts cascaded bombs on a railroad yard at Yangdok astride the Reds' east-west supply route across the narrow, 90-mile waist of North Korea.

The B-29s also hit a North Korean military staff establishment and troop center at Yongpong and a supply area at Sonsang, both within a 30-mile radius of Yangdok.

Grenade-hurling South Korean troops charged up to the crest of big Nori Hill on the western front today and blasted Chinese positions one hour and 20 minutes, then withdrew.

An Eighth Army spokesman said the Republic of Korea (ROK) infantrymen killed at least 85 Reds in the furious hit-run raid. It was preceded by air strikes and a concentrated artillery barrage. Tanks covered the ROKs' flanks.

Big Nori, scene of heavy fighting early last December, overlooks the Imjim river valley on one of the historic invasion routes to Seoul. The hill is roughly 50 miles northeast of the Republican capital.

The action was among several allied attacks on Communist positions on the western and eastern fronts. On the central front allied tanks banged away at Chinese bunkers and gun positions.

AP correspondent Forrest Edwards reported from the extreme western front that an allied patrol surprised a group of Chinese and killed at least seven in hand-to-hand fighting.

VFW Week Gets City Endorsement

Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk today issued a proclamation in behalf of National VFW Week from Jan. 25 through Jan. 31.

The resolution noted that the Veterans of Foreign Wars is the "oldest and most distinctive of all veterans' organizations, and is composed entirely of men who served overseas in time of war."

Over a period of 54 years it said, the VFW has "performed many notable services on behalf of the veteran, his dependents and the nation as a whole."

The organization, whose emblem is the Cross of Malta, he said, has "adhered to principles that truly reflect the highest ideals of patriotism and Americanism." It and its ladies' auxiliary units has "demonstrated complete unselfishness and true civic-mindedness." He called upon all citizens to salute and pay cognizance of the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States, during National VFW Week.

Unicorns were once supposed to have the head and body of a horse, the hind legs of an antelope and the tail of a lion.

Set Up Committee To Study Robots

Washington, Jan. 23 (AP)—The Aircraft Industries Association, calling attention to "the fast-growing importance of guided missiles as an arm of this nation's defense," announced today it is setting up a special committee to deal with the flying robots.

Meanwhile, the air force spiked a rumor that the colored aerial objects seen over north Japan recently were Russian guided missiles.

"Pure conjecture," said an air force spokesman. "We have nothing to indicate any such explanation."

The air force has earmarked an estimated 527 million dollars for its guided missiles program in the fiscal year starting July 1. This is five times the amount of obligations—$97,442,980—for missiles in the fiscal year which ended last June 30.

Just Over Horizon

Although detailed information on guided missiles is classified for security reasons, one leading missile manufacturer, J. H. Kindelberger, chairman of the Board of North American Aviation, Inc., said recently the intercontinental missile is "just over the horizon."

Kindelberger said such a weapon "will be capable of accurately delivering to any point on the surface of the earth, in a few hours, a warhead carrying infinite destruction and, because of its speed and altitude, will be impossible to intercept."

The association committee will act on behalf of guided missile manufacturers on problems of research, engineering design, development, construction and testing, the association said.

Eligible for committee membership are those companies engaged in the design and manufacture of missiles or main missile components.

Spotted on Radar

An air force spokesman told a reporter the U. S. has confirmed reports that fast moving colored lights were seen over northern Japan on Dec. 29, and Jan. 9 and that they were spotted on both ground and airborne radar.

But, the spokesman added, there was nothing in the preliminary reports to indicate the aerial sightings were different from those reported in the rash of spottings in the U. S. several months ago.

At that time the air force offered the explanation that atmospheric conditions such as heat inversion caused reflections that were detectible on radar scopes.

The air force went further to say that there was no reason to believe that any objects seen or reported in this country had been launched from any other celestial body or any other country.

After Close of Market

Another is a secondary offering, by some firm, in which dealers who are not members of the stock exchange might participate. Such a sale would be after the close of the market.

Other possibilities are that he might sell his stock to some charitable foundation such as the Alfred P. Sloan Foundation, or that General Motors itself might be interested in acquiring the stock for its own treasury for use in its bonus plan. The Sloan Foundation is a charitable foundation established by Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., chairman of the Board of General Motors.

Not Even Considered

But a spokesman for the Sloan Foundation said "the idea hasn't entered our minds" regarding the suggestion it might be interested in acquiring the stock. And there was no comment from General Motors on the suggestion it might like to have the stock for its treasury.

The 39,000 shares held by Wilson compares with 8,400 General Motors shares traded on the New York Stock Exchange yesterday, 52,200 traded last week and 2,432,900 traded in 1952.

That amount put on sale at one time, nevertheless, would represent a large offering whether sold on the floor of the exchange or in a secondary distribution.

The largest special offering last year was 37,584 shares of F. W. Woolworth and Co. at $44 a share with a market value of $1,653,000 on July 28. It was sold in two hours and three minutes.

Big Secondary Offer

One of the largest secondary offerings was sale of 100,000 shares of Western Union stock by financier John Fox through Reynolds and Co. at $39 a share, with a market value of $3,900,000, on Sept. 15. Offered after the market was closed, it was sold out the same day. It represented about eight per cent of Western Union's outstanding shares.

There was no comment of any kind from General Motors officials here and in Detroit on Wilson's plan to sell his GM shares.

General Motors common opened on the New York Stock Exchange with sale of a block of 1,800 shares at $68.25 a share, unchanged from yesterday's close. In fairly quiet trading, it later sagged 50 cents a share by late morning.

The stock ranged from $50 to $69.50 a share in 1952.

President, Aides

into office. They and five other top officials of the new administration were scheduled to meet with the President to discuss a wide range of foreign and domestic problems.

McKay Not Present

Secretary of the Interior McKay, however, had to pass up the cabinet meeting.

McKay turned up with a case of influenza yesterday and hasn't been to his Interior Department office since being sworn in Wednesday night.

He told a reporter by telephone this morning he thought he was somewhat better than yesterday but still had a fever of about 101 degrees. He said his doctor advised him to stay in bed.

In advance of the meeting, the White House said that W. J. McNeil, Acting Secretary of Defense, would sit in for Wilson. The latter had a date with the Senate Armed Services committee at the same hour (10 a. m., EST).

Since the full cabinet couldn't be on hand, photographers were told there would be no pictures of the initial session.

He says the Mutual Security Agency in Washington has authorized its counterpart here, the Philippine Council for U. S. Aid, to spend the equivalent of $375,000 for reconstruction of the university's Rizal Hall.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Jan. 23 (AP)—The stock market idled through another dull session today. Prices were mixed with a tendency to drift lower.

Volume lagged somewhat behind yesterday's sluggish pace.

Steel shares tended to work irregularly higher. Motors, and utilities were easier and the other groups were mixed.

Texas Pacific Land Trust advanced around 6 points today. The issue had been a leading gainer earlier this week following reports that a stock split might be in the offing. Missouri Pacific Preferred advanced around a point, and U. S. Gypsum was off about that much, but there were few other price changes of more than fractions.

VFW Week Gets City Endorsement

Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk today issued a proclamation in behalf of National VFW Week from Jan. 25 through Jan. 31.

The resolution noted that the Veterans of Foreign Wars is the "oldest and most distinctive of all veterans' organizations, and is composed entirely of men who served overseas in time of war."

Over a period of 54 years it said, the VFW has "performed many notable services on behalf of the veteran, his dependents and the nation as a whole."

The organization, whose emblem is the Cross of Malta, he said, has "adhered to principles that truly reflect the highest ideals of patriotism and Americanism." It and its ladies' auxiliary units has "demonstrated complete unselfishness and true civic-mindedness." He called upon all citizens to salute and pay cognizance of the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States, during National VFW Week.

Unicorns were once supposed to have the head and body of a horse, the hind legs of an antelope and the tail of a lion.

Set Up Committee To Study Robots

Washington, Jan. 23 (AP)—The Aircraft Industries Association, calling attention to "the fast-growing importance of guided missiles as an arm of this nation's defense," announced today it is setting up a special committee to deal with the flying robots.

Meanwhile, the air force spiked a rumor that the colored aerial objects seen over north Japan recently were Russian guided missiles.

"Pure conjecture," said an air force spokesman. "We have nothing to indicate any such explanation."

The air force has earmarked an estimated 527 million dollars for its guided missiles program in the fiscal year starting July 1. This is five times the amount of obligations—$97,442,980—for missiles in the fiscal year which ended last June 30.

Just Over Horizon

Although detailed information on guided missiles is classified for security reasons, one leading missile manufacturer, J. H. Kindelberger, chairman of the Board of North American Aviation, Inc., said recently the intercontinental missile is "just over the horizon."

Kindelberger said such a weapon "will be capable of accurately delivering to any point on the surface of the earth, in a few hours, a warhead carrying infinite destruction and, because of its speed and altitude, will be impossible to intercept."

The association committee will act on behalf of guided missile manufacturers on problems of research, engineering design, development, construction and testing, the association said.

Eligible for committee membership are those companies engaged in the design and manufacture of missiles or main missile components.

Spotted on Radar

An air force spokesman told a reporter the U. S. has confirmed reports that fast moving colored lights were seen over northern Japan on Dec. 29, and Jan. 9 and that they were spotted on both ground and airborne radar.

But, the spokesman added, there was nothing in the preliminary reports to indicate the aerial sightings were different from those reported in the rash of spottings in the U. S. several months ago.

At that time the air force offered the explanation that atmospheric conditions such as heat inversion caused reflections that were detectible on radar scopes.

The air force went further to say that there was no reason to believe that any objects seen or reported in this country had been launched from any other celestial body or any other country.

General Motors Stock Loses 50 Cents Share

New York, Jan. 23 (AP) — General Motors common stock lost 50 cents a share in the first hour of trade on the New York Stock Exchange today on total sales of 4,100 shares. Turnover in GM was 8,400 shares in yesterday's 5½ hour session.

The stock, in the spotlight because of the overnight disclosure that its former president, Charles E. Wilson, had agreed to dispose of his holdings, opened on a block of 1,800 shares at $68.25, unchanged and subsequently drifted to $67.75 by 11 a. m.

The entire stock market was quiet and trends were irregular.

Wilson Stock Sale

in which member firms buy the stock for their customers.

After Close of Market

Another is a secondary offering, by some firm, in which dealers who are not members of the stock exchange might participate. Such a sale would be after the close of the market.

Other possibilities are that he might sell his stock to some charitable foundation such as the Alfred P. Sloan Foundation, or that General Motors itself might be interested in acquiring the stock for its own treasury for use in its bonus plan. The Sloan Foundation is a charitable foundation established by Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., chairman of the Board of General Motors.

Not Even Considered

But a spokesman for the Sloan Foundation said "the idea hasn't entered our minds" regarding the suggestion it might be interested in acquiring the stock. And there was no comment from General Motors on the suggestion it might like to have the stock for its treasury.

The 39,000 shares held by Wilson compares with 8,400 General Motors shares traded on the New York Stock Exchange yesterday, 52,200 traded last week and 2,432,900 traded in 1952.

That amount put on sale at one time, nevertheless, would represent a large offering whether sold on the floor of the exchange or in a secondary distribution.

The largest special offering last year was 37,584 shares of F. W. Woolworth and Co. at $44 a share with a market value of $1,653,000 on July 28. It was sold in two hours and three minutes.

Big Secondary Offer

One of the largest secondary offerings was sale of 100,000 shares of Western Union stock by financier John Fox through Reynolds and Co. at $39 a share, with a market value of $3,900,000, on Sept. 15. Offered after the market was closed, it was sold out the same day. It represented about eight per cent of Western Union's outstanding shares.

There was no comment of any kind from General Motors officials here and in Detroit on Wilson's plan to sell his GM shares.

General Motors common opened on the New York Stock Exchange with sale of a block of 1,800 shares at $68.25 a share, unchanged from yesterday's close. In fairly quiet trading, it later sagged 50 cents a share by late morning.

The stock ranged from $50 to $69.50 a share in 1952.

President, Aides

into office. They and five other top officials of the new administration were scheduled to meet with the President to discuss a wide range of foreign and domestic problems.

McKay Not Present

Secretary of the Interior McKay, however, had to pass up the cabinet meeting.

McKay turned up with a case of influenza yesterday and hasn't been to his Interior Department office since being sworn in Wednesday night.

He told a reporter by telephone this morning he thought he was somewhat better than yesterday but still had a fever of about 101 degrees. He said his doctor advised him to stay in bed.

In advance of the meeting, the White House said that W. J. McNeil, Acting Secretary of Defense, would sit in for Wilson. The latter had a date with the Senate Armed Services committee at the same hour (10 a. m., EST).

Since the full cabinet couldn't be on hand, photographers were told there would be no pictures of the initial session.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Jan. 23 (AP)—The stock market idled through another dull session today. Prices were mixed with a tendency to drift lower.

Volume lagged somewhat behind yesterday's sluggish pace.

Steel shares tended to work irregularly higher. Motors, and utilities were easier and the other groups were mixed.

Texas Pacific Land Trust advanced around 6 points today. The issue had been a leading gainer earlier this week following reports that a stock split might be in the offing. Missouri Pacific Preferred advanced around a point, and U. S. Gypsum was off about that much, but there were few other price changes of more than fractions.

February Is Big Month for Action On Thruway Bids

Next month is expected to be a big one for action on New York State Thruway contracts in this area, it was learned today.

A state official said plans are nearing completion for the Route 28-Whiteport section and it is anticipated that bids will be sought within the next month, possibly by Feb. 15.

It will not be long after that before bids are sought on the section between Whiteport and Ohioville, he said.

Meanwhile, a letting of contract for the final section in Greene county above Catskill, is scheduled for Feb. 11. Four bridges are to be built in the section between Kiskatom and a point near Leeds. A second contract will be for grading and paving of 5.63 miles from Lime street to Route 81 near West Coxsackie. Three bridges and a mile of access roads are to be built in this section.

The completed section of the Thruway in this area now extends from a point near Sawkill to Route 23A near Catskill.

It is expected that by the end of this year work will be in progress over the entire length of the route, except on the few scattered strips now completed.

No Cause Verdict Given in Francello, Fire Truck Crash

A verdict of no cause for action was returned Thursday in the action brought by James V. Francello against the Glasco Fire company, the fire commissioners and Michael Bonavita, driver of the fire truck, which was responding to an alarm at Malden on January 15, 1950 when the plaintiff's car and the fire truck were in collision on the Malden bridge at Saugerties.

Francello sought payment for damage to his car and for injuries which he sustained when his car skidded on the ice on the bridge and stalled and while there was struck by the fire truck. During the trial testimony was offered on behalf of the plaintiff through the driver of the fire truck to the effect that he had experienced difficulty with the brakes of the truck that night. A counter claim brought by the fire company to recover for damages to the truck was also denied by the jury which returned no cause verdicts in both actions. Joseph M. Campbell appeared for plaintiff Francello and Andrew J. Cook, Jr., appeared for the driver and the defendant fire company and commissioners.

Fined After Cars Collide Head-on

Gainor Steven Crist, 30, of Kew Gardens was arrested on two traffic charges after the automobile he was driving was involved in a collision on the Onteora Trail near Temple's Pond in the town of Olive, state police reported.

Arraigned before Justice of the Peace Frank C. Carle of the town of Olive, Crist was sentenced to a fine of $30 or 30 days in jail on a reckless driving charge, and an additional $10 or 10 days on a charge that he was an unlicensed operator. Unable to pay the fine at the time, he was committed to jail.

Was on Wrong Side

Troopers said that the automobile Crist was driving was in head-on collision with an automobile driven by Raymond Fitchner of Chichester about 5:40 a. m. today. State police charged that Crist was driving east "on the wrong side of the road."

The crash resulted in a call being placed to Kingston for an ambulance, but on its arrival no one claimed to be in need of medical attention, troopers reported.

man, then ran in to the men's room. When he emerged, he said, his assailants were gone. In 1935, Smith said, he was shot in the stomach and his leg was broken in eight places by a mobster allied with Dunn.

Dunn and Sheridan died in Sing Sing Prison's electric chair in 1949 for a waterfront murder.

It was at this point that Smith told of going to Cliffside. He left there in a hurry, he said, when tipped off that FBI agents were in town. It was then, he said, he hid out in Marlborough.

Another witness yesterday was a silent one—Mickey Bowers, reputed undercover leader of a mob which took over control of "Pistol Local" 824 of the AFL International Longshoremen's Association.

Mickey Bowers hold no office in the local but his cousin, Harold Bowers, allegedly took over leadership of the ILA unit without the formality of an election.

Mickey Bowers refused to answer commission questions on grounds of possible self incrimination.

Kennan Explains

the State Department several days in advance of Dulles' appearance before the Senate committee and thus could not have been directed at what Dulles said there.

Kennan apparently was distressed that his speech might have been so interpreted.

The line which Dulles took before the committee, however, was one which he had advocated during the presidential campaign, and the question remained whether Kennan had this in mind in expressing the views he did in his Scranton speech.

Kennan went to Moscow as ambassador last May. He was barred by the Soviet government from returning to his job there after he had expressed criticism, during a trip to western Europe in September, of a lack of contact between foreign diplomats and the Russian people in the Soviet capital.

Like all other ambassadors Kennan has turned in his resignation, but as a career foreign service officer is subject to appointment to a new post.

Roaring Norther

children were stranded in Plainview when buses were unable to return them to their rural homes. Many remained in Plainview homes for the night. A Plainview radio station repeatedly broadcast their names to worried parents.

A similar situation prevailed in snow-bound Pampa where school officials announced they would not open the schools today. It was probable, police said, that many other schools would find it useless to open.

The Weather Bureau predicted snow flurries in north central Texas, warmer temperatures in west Texas and south central portions of the state and colder weather in east Texas as the shallow cold front passed into Louisiana.

Population of the United States increased more from immigrants than from births in the first ten years of this century.

ity Committee, noted that the strawberry acreage in eastern New York at present consists of 204 acres, compared to 344 acres 10 years ago.

The decrease, according to the resolution, is due to "poor yields resulting from low plant vigor, poor livability and poor set of runners, the cause of which is unknown." It asked the College of Agriculture and experiment station to find out why yields are decreasing and determine methods of correcting the factors involved.

Other resolutions were previously adopted at Rochester and endorsed at the Eastern Meeting. They included one endorsing the 1953 legislative program of the state Conference Board of Farm Organizations; another asking the U. S. Department of Agriculture to undertake merchandising experiments in the large metropolitan markets of New York and Chicago to "find more effective ways of selling apples in retail stores."

Information Asked

Resolutions also asked the state agriculture and markets department to collect and disseminate information annually on plantings and removals of apple, peach, cherry and pear trees; a survey of fruit orchards; a continuation of the school lunch program.

The research divisions of the New York State College of Agriculture at Cornell and Geneva and their staffs were commended by another resolution.

The society expressed its appreciation for the work of Walter Clarke of Milton, a past president, who died during the year and extended its "heartfelt sympathy" to members of his family.

Winners Introduced

At a banquet at the Old Dutch Church Thursday night, winners of the 4-H Club pie-baking contests were introduced. They were Nancy Clum of Salt Point, Dutchess county, judged best apple pie baker; Marilyn Estes, Poughkeepsie, Dutchess county, best cherry pie, and Jane Lieff, Montgomery, Orange county, currant pie. A blue ribbon, signifying an "excellent pie," but not quite up to the standard of the winning pie, was awarded Nancy Ellsworth of Port Ewen, Ulster county, for her cherry pie.

Dr. Arthur J. Heinicke, director of the New York State Agricultural Experiment Station at Geneva, here to speak at the Horticultural Society meeting, was guest speaker at the regular Thursday noon meeting of the Kingston Kiwanis Club at the Governor Clinton Hotel. Speaking of the changes in the apple industry in his 40 years' experience at Cornell University, Dr. Heinicke told of new developments in merchandising, of new apple varieties which replaced the older types, of advances made in storage procedure and in the use of hormones to produce better apples.

Ulster County Apple Awarded Washington Expert

Mrs. James Clarke of Milton, wife of the president of the New York State Horticultural Society, awarded Dr. L. B. Batjer, an Ulster county apple for having won the distinction of traveling the longest distance to attend the show, which opened on Wednesday and will close tonight, at the Armory on Manor avenue. Dr. Batjer's home is in Wenatchee, Wash., a state well known for its own fine apples. At Mrs. Clarke's left, in the usual order, are Dr. A. J. Heinicke, Geneva; Dr. Charles Palm, Cornell, and Sam Levering, Ararat, Va. (Freeman Photo)

No Cause Verdict Given in Francello, Fire Truck Crash

A verdict of no cause for action was returned Thursday in the action brought by James V. Francello against the Glasco Fire company, the fire commissioners and Michael Bonavita, driver of the fire truck, which was responding to an alarm at Malden on January 15, 1950 when the plaintiff's car and the fire truck were in collision on the Malden bridge at Saugerties.

Francello sought payment for damage to his car and for injuries which he sustained when his car skidded on the ice on the bridge and stalled and while there was struck by the fire truck. During the trial testimony was offered on behalf of the plaintiff through the driver of the fire truck to the effect that he had experienced difficulty with the brakes of the truck that night. A counter claim brought by the fire company to recover for damages to the truck was also denied by the jury which returned no cause verdicts in both actions. Joseph M. Campbell appeared for plaintiff Francello and Andrew J. Cook, Jr., appeared for the driver and the defendant fire company and commissioners.

Fined After Cars Collide Head-on

Gainor Steven Crist, 30, of Kew Gardens was arrested on two traffic charges after the automobile he was driving was involved in a collision on the Onteora Trail near Temple's Pond in the town of Olive, state police reported.

Arraigned before Justice of the Peace Frank C. Carle of the town of Olive, Crist was sentenced to a fine of $30 or 30 days in jail on a reckless driving charge, and an additional $10 or 10 days on a charge that he was an unlicensed operator. Unable to pay the fine at the time, he was committed to jail.

Was on Wrong Side

Troopers said that the automobile Crist was driving was in head-on collision with an automobile driven by Raymond Fitchner of Chichester about 5:40 a. m. today. State police charged that Crist was driving east "on the wrong side of the road."

The crash resulted in a call being placed to Kingston for an ambulance, but on its arrival no one claimed to be in need of medical attention, troopers reported.

Docks' Mobster

man, then ran in to the men's room. When he emerged, he said, his assailants were gone. In 1935, Smith said, he was shot in the stomach and his leg was broken in eight places by a mobster allied with Dunn.

Dunn and Sheridan died in Sing Sing Prison's electric chair in 1949 for a waterfront murder.

It was at this point that Smith told of going to Cliffside. He left there in a hurry, he said, when tipped off that FBI agents were in town. It was then, he said, he hid out in Marlborough.

Another witness yesterday was a silent one—Mickey Bowers, reputed undercover leader of a mob which took over control of "Pistol Local" 824 of the AFL International Longshoremen's Association.

Mickey Bowers hold no office in the local but his cousin, Harold Bowers, allegedly took over leadership of the ILA unit without the formality of an election.

Mickey Bowers refused to answer commission questions on grounds of possible self incrimination.

Kennan Explains

the State Department several days in advance of Dulles' appearance before the Senate committee and thus could not have been directed at what Dulles said there.

Kennan apparently was distressed that his speech might have been so interpreted.

The line which Dulles took before the committee, however, was one which he had advocated during the presidential campaign, and the question remained whether Kennan had this in mind in expressing the views he did in his Scranton speech.

Kennan went to Moscow as ambassador last May. He was barred by the Soviet government from returning to his job there after he had expressed criticism, during a trip to western Europe in September, of a lack of contact between foreign diplomats and the Russian people in the Soviet capital.

Like all other ambassadors Kennan has turned in his resignation, but as a career foreign service officer is subject to appointment to a new post.

Roaring Norther

children were stranded in Plainview when buses were unable to return them to their rural homes. Many remained in Plainview homes for the night. A Plainview radio station repeatedly broadcast their names to worried parents.

A similar situation prevailed in snow-bound Pampa where school officials announced they would not open the schools today. It was probable, police said, that many other schools would find it useless to open.

The Weather Bureau predicted snow flurries in north central Texas, warmer temperatures in west Texas and south central portions of the state and colder weather in east Texas as the shallow cold front passed into Louisiana.

Population of the United States increased more from immigrants than from births in the first ten years of this century.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, JANUARY 23, 1953

STORM WARNINGS

Even before he assumed office General Eisenhower was given a taste of the hazards of making decisions as President of the United States. At first his appointment of Charles E. Wilson, former head of General Motors, was acclaimed on all sides. Wilson is a man of great administrative ability. He has had experience on the management side of industry and is aware of its problems and how they affect the defense effort. His critics were few even among Democrats.

But recently the hope of President Eisenhower to have his entire cabinet sworn in with him on inauguration day were blasted by Congressional investigators who revealed that Wilson still owned about two and a half million dollars' worth of General Motors stock. Since the Secretary of Defense must have dealings with this large and powerful company some congressmen thought Wilson's stock ownership made him unfit for the office.

Charles E. Wilson is an honest man and he would probably be quite capable of making decisions on the dealings of his department with General Motors without being prejudiced in its favor. But there is a law which precludes government officials from having investments in firms with which they must negotiate. In the light of some recent scandals and some not recent, the law is a wise one. Amending or ignoring it to keep Wilson in the cabinet would be setting a precedent which might later prove not only troublesome but dangerous.

No one's honesty has been questioned by the Congressmen. Perhaps some way will be found to keep the ability and talent of Charles E. Wilson in the new cabinet. But the problem illustrates the rocky and perilous path a President of the United States must travel in fulfilling the duties of his office.

OUR NEW LEADER

Dedicated to the service of his country since boyhood, Dwight D. Eisenhower now occupies the highest place his countrymen can afford him. He joins the great company of Americans who have filled the office of President of the United States.

Until now President Eisenhower has known and deserved nothing except the praise and esteem of his countrymen. In the difficult job ahead some of the decisions he will have to make may earn him censure and vilification from men who are affected by those decisions. Even those who acclaimed him at his inauguration may grow impatient because he cannot accomplish miracles. This is always the lot of leaders and it was borne with fortitude by Presidents as great as Washington, Jefferson and Lincoln. The public is quick to adopt a hero but it is fickle and is often apt to break his heart.

But Eisenhower is made of stern stuff. He has faith in the people and in the spirit of the country and he will not lose that faith if sometimes a few grow frightened and confused and blame him for their own failings. He is a humble and religious man and will turn for Higher counsel when his own wisdom cannot find the answers.

The prayers, the hopes and the good wishes of men everywhere are with President Eisenhower. May he move forward with the splendid courage he has displayed in the past, leading us to a brighter, happier, less-troubled time.

BETTER THAN WE THINK

If the international outlook sometimes seems black, a backward glance may restore the proper perspective. Barbara Ward, British economist, writing in the New York Times recently, asked:

"Who, in 1945, would have dared to predict the scale of reform in Japan, the establishment of independence in India, Pakistan, Ceylon, Burma and Indonesia, the immense scale of American generosity, the setting up of the Schuman pool of Western Europe's heavy industry, the first move toward aid in backward areas, and the first act to collective world defense in Korea."

In 1945, flushed with victory, we thought all the major problems solved. Now we see that that was an unrealistic attitude, and that unregarded dangers were on the horizon. Today's pessimism may be equally misjudged.

The first of the year is always a significant date. It's the springboard hour for another tussle with the income tax.

Some people don't have anything to say. And it takes a long time for them to say it.

STANDARDS OF LIFE

The persecution of citizens in Russia, East Germany, Hungary and other Soviet countries must force upon every person living in this country, citizen or alien, the realization of a life without fear of the police power of government that is so characteristic of our civilization. Of course, the person who, by his own choice, commits legal or moral crimes, faces the consequences of his own decisions, here as anywhere else. But it is neither a legal nor moral crime in America to be different from the generality, whereas in the Soviet countries, a norm is established by edict—a shifting, whimsical norm—from which even inadvertent deviation becomes a personal peril. No one is safe from the tyrant's whims.

Thus, the American standard of life includes not only material advantages, but the even greater spiritual values that come with freedom. The American actually lives in a classless society in the sense that emergence to eminence, in any field, is open to any person with the capacity and will for achievement.

Harry Truman came of what in Europe or Asia would be called small landowners, not far removed from the peasantry; yet he became President of the United States. Similarly, Dwight Eisenhower came out of the same economic and social level and he is President of the United States.

Neither of them emerged from big cities, centers of culture and opportunity. Truman lived most of his life in a small town, Independence Missouri; similarly, Eisenhower spent his boyhood in Abilene, Kansas. Neither had extraordinary advantages beyond being a citizen of the United States. Eisenhower did get his schooling at West Point, to which are sent not the scions of an aristocracy nor the descendants of a military caste, but boys who can make the grade after being recommended by a member of Congress.

I read somewhere that a columnist said that Eisenhower's Cabinet consisted of millionaires and a plumber. Much ado is made of the large fortunes of C. E. Wilson and George Humphrey; yet both earned their way up from small-town middle class parents who possessed no great fortunes. And both were small-town boys, educated in our public schools, with no special advantages. The only Cabinet officer whose inheritance is really notable is John Foster Dulles, but it was not a money inheritance—it was the distinction of having a grandfather and uncle who were Secretaries of State. I remember Herbert Brownell, Jr., the new Attorney General, soon after he came to New York from Nebraska to find his way in the big city as a lawyer. He was a farm boy in those days and had much to learn about the sidewalks and skyscrapers of the metropolis. He ran for the State Legislature and another small-town boy, Tom Dewey, managed his campaign.

In a word, this is no Cabinet of inherited wealth or inherited social position. From the President to the Secretary of Labor, there are men who saw the opportunities of American life and took full advantage of them.

In this connection, I find an interpretation of our standards of life by an official of a labor union, Maurice A. Hutcheson of the Brotherhood of Carpenters, which I should like to see pinned on the bulletin board of every classroom because it is so inspiring of the opportunities for a rich life in our land. Mr. Hutcheson says:

"Today the average skilled worker makes as much money as some junior executives and a good deal more than most white collar workers. He owns a television set, or at least a radio, and he subscribes to newspapers and magazines. He sends his children to high school and perhaps even to college. He reads and he listens to radio and TV and he knows what is going on in the world about him. You only insult his intelligence when you try to treat him as though he were an ignoramus."

As one reads this, it is impossible not to recognize that here in the United States we have no proletariat, no class-consciousness, no irremovable handicaps for men of ability and genius. They can and do rise to the top by hard work and ingenuity. Let us not speak of a Cabinet of "millionaires and a plumber" but rather of a Cabinet of men of achievement in a land of opportunity.

THREE-FOLD ACTION OF BENADRYL

It is interesting to watch the life or career of a new drug that is tested in the laboratory before it is placed on the market for general use. One group of research workers find that this drug is a specific or the special drug that should be used in a certain disease or group of symptoms and report the results of their use in the medical journals. Another group, perhaps of equal standing, report that their results were not so good, not really good at all, and the drug caused mild or severe reactions.

What happens?

As more and more research workers test out the drug, its life or career may rise like a pendulum, to be followed by a drop of the pendulum and later another rise occurs until finally the drug establishes itself on a permanent basis, not as high as the original findings, yet not as low as that given by some reports.

A drug that has established itself as a quieter of very rapid or irregular movements of the stomach is benadryl, used in stomach and intestinal ulcer (peptic ulcer), its specific action being to quiet the stomach (anesthetic) when gastroscope is used to examine lining of the stomach.

And now in the American Practitioner, Dr. N. A. Bercel points out that benadryl alone or in combination with other drugs is definitely beneficial for almost all patients with Parkinson's disease (paralysis agitans) in which the three outstanding symptoms are (a) loss of expression of the face, (b) stiff or rigid forward bend of the body, and (c) shaking of the body, especially the hands which give the appearance of rolling a pin with the fingers. Other symptoms that may be present are muscle cramps and more or less stuttering of speech. As Parkinson's is a particularly difficult disease to treat, the treatment by benadryl is encouraging. "Results indicated that benadryl is well tolerated in large doses and effectively controls many of the distressing symptoms of Parkinson's disease."

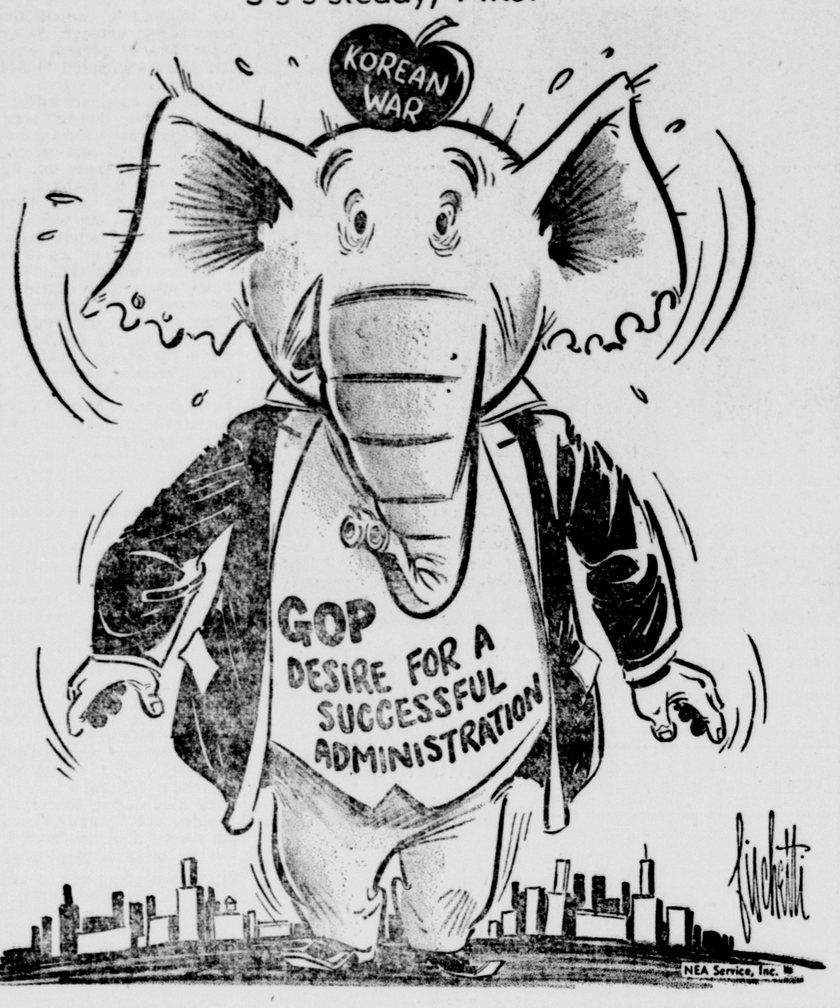

Benadryl produced improvement in 55 per cent of cases when used alone and in 71.5 per cent combined with other drugs. Gait improved, speech and swallowing were less difficult, and emotions became more comfortable. Asthmenia (weakness and tiredness) was reduced.

Benadryl is used as a specific drug by many physicians in hay fever and asthma.

Edson's Washington News Notebook

By PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

Washington, (NEA)—President Dwight Eisenhower's inaugural message should bring cheer to believers in international cooperation, and gloom to the isolationists.

The message was a masterpiece of careful planning. Its short sentences are crystal clear. The perfection of its organization can be easily shown by the fact that the whole speech can be condensed to a half-dozen sentences and clauses in the President's own words. No paraphrasing is necessary. Here, in capsule form, is its essence:

". . . the future shall belong to the free.

"* * * we who are free must proclaim anew our faith.

"The enemies of this faith know no God but force . . .

". . . destiny has laid upon our country the responsibility of the free world's leadership.

"We must be ready to dare all for our country.

"We must be willing, individually and as a nation, to accept whatever sacrifices may be required of us."

President Eisenhower's message is as direct as that.

There will undoubtedly be much effort to read between the lines of this speech, or to read into it meaning which may not be there.

For instance, the cynical may say that "to dare all for our country" means to risk a third world war.

Or it may be said that "to accept whatever sacrifices may be required" means still higher taxes for still greater foreign aid programs.

Program for Peace

Until President Eisenhower himself puts such meaning into his words, the safe thing to do is to take his inaugural message at face value as he offers it—a nine-point program for peace. For the specific measures which the new President proposes, it may be necessary to wait still a little longer. The elaboration may come in Mr. Eisenhower's promised State-of-the-Union message to Congress.

To get some inkling of what these recommendations may be, it is possible to go back to two previous efforts Mr. Eisenhower made to summarize his views.

The first effort was made in his initial campaign speech, just after he got the Republican nomination. That was his "non-political" talk before the Veterans of Foreign Wars at Los Angeles, in August. His second summary was in his final campaign broadcast from New York, the night before election.

These two statements plus the inaugural address have to be taken together to get a larger view of what is on President Eisenhower's mind as he tackles this most difficult job in the world.

Developing Ideas

The three statements vary somewhat in content, but they are not inconsistent.

Together they show the President's developing ideas. The first speech was made by a general turned politician. The second was the statement of a more seasoned political campaigner. The third shows greater maturity and awareness of world responsibility.

Condensed, here are the 10 points he made at Los Angeles:

Increase American strength. Win peace through strength of the free world. Build a prosperity not based on war. Make equality a living fact for every American. Extend the security and welfare of the people. Protect earnings from the double toll of high prices and high taxes. Serve the worthy interests of every group of people. Restore honesty in government. Insure that those who work for government are loyal. Revive in every American the faith that he can achieve a better living for himself and his family.

Three months later, see how this program had been altered slightly for an election-eve pledge to:

Serve all the people, regardless of race, creed or origin. Extend social gains. Restore integrity in government. Eliminate waste in government. Strengthen — not weaken—the laws that protect the worker. Throw full resources into a battle against inflation. Promote a healthy, prosperous agriculture. Make equality of opportunity a living reality. Stamp out disloyalty.

Build a firm, consistent foreign policy to attain peace in the world for all people.

It is on this last pledge that President Eisenhower seems to have built his inaugural message, with its nine fixed principles:

Deter the forces of aggression and promote peace. Never placate an aggressor by trading honor for security. Place the cause of country before self. Never use strength to force American institutions on other people. Help proved friends of freedom achieve their own security. Foster everywhere increased productivity and profitable trade. Strengthen regional security pacts. Reject any idea that any race or nation is expendable. Strive to make the United Nations an effective force.

Constitution Does Not Fix Time When Presidential Oath Shall Be Taken

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Jan. 23 — Since they're getting a bit "legalistic" hereabouts these days, the question might be raised as to the exact moment when Dwight D. Eisenhower became President of the United States and whether he actually complied with the Constitution when he took the oath of office at 12:31 p. m. on January 20.

Surprisingly enough, the Constitution doesn't fix a time when the oath shall be taken. It merely says: "The terms of the President and Vice-President shall end at noon on the 20th day of January."

But what does "noon" mean? Does it mean the "noon hour"—that is, from twelve to one o'clock? Or does it mean the stroke of twelve? If it's the precise second that the minute and the hour hand touches twelve o'clock, then it would be impossible for the new President to take the oath in that single second. It requires several seconds for the oath to be administered and for the oath to be repeated by the new President. The dictionary, moreover, permits the definition of "noon" as "midday."

Also, does the word "noon" mean twelve o'clock only in Washington or anywhere in the United States? For, in the three other time belts across the country, it was eleven, ten and nine o'clock in the forenoon, respectively, when the ceremony was going on in Washington.

But even if Washington time and the hour of twelve is the legal time for the occasion, it really isn't unconstitutional when the oath is taken half an hour after the stroke of twelve or several hours or even days later. One thing certain is that the outgoing President's term expired at the stroke of twelve on January 20.

The Constitution, omitting any specific time when the new President has to take the oath, says about a President:

"Before he enter on the execution of his office he shall take the following oath or affirmation."

This means that a man can be President for a while and yet not begin "the execution of his office" until he has taken the oath. There is always some lapse of minutes between the expiration of one term and the actual taking of oath by the successor, and when James Monroe succeeded himself in 1821 his first term ended on Sunday, March 4, but he was not sworn in for the second term until Monday, the 5th. Rutherford B. Hayes, on the other hand, after winning the contested election of 1876, was sworn in privately on March 3, 1877, taking the oath before the expiration of his predecesor's term.

When vice presidents have succeeded to the presidency, there have been considerable lapses of time before the taking of the oath. Thus, when President McKinley died in Buffalo, N. Y., from an assassin's bullet in the early morning hours of September 14, 1901, it was not until the late afternoon that Vice President Theodore Roosevelt was able to get to Buffalo to take the oath.

About 14 hours elapsed between the time of the death of President Harding at San Francisco on August 2, 1923, and the moment when Vice President Calvin Coolidge took the oath at Plymouth, Vt., the next afternoon. There was a lapse of a little over three hours between the time when President Franklin D. Roosevelt died at Warm Springs, Ga., on April 12, 1945, and 7:09 that same evening when Vice President Truman took the oath at the White House in Washington.

Certainly it cannot be contended logically that, in the case of a natural succession, the outgoing president does hold over or that for a little while the United States doesn't have a president, whereas, in the case of death of a president, the vice president automatically becomes president the moment breath has passed from the body of his predecessor. The simplest interpretation is that the United States had a president from the stroke of twelve on Tuesday, January 20, when Mr. Trlman's term expired, and that Dwight Eisenhower held the office even though the oath was not administered at once.

The only question that could arise is over the legality of any steps taken if there is an unavoidable delay in taking the oath. Some days a new president might become involved in a lawsuit in which it might be argued that certain powers exercised at a given moment in his behalf by some subordinate department or agency were not valid because there was no president in office at the time.

Congress has never taken care of this contingency, but it has the power nevertheless under the constitution to provide for the handling of any and all vacancies. Thus, the 20th Amendment says:

"The Congress may by law provide for the case wherein neither a president elect nor a vice-president elect shall have qualified, declaring who shall then act as president, or the manner in which one who is to act shall be selected, and such person shall act accordingly until a president or vice-president shall have qualified."

Hence, Congress may also provide for the legalization of any acts by agencies or departments of the government taken in the name of the President between the time of the expiration of a presidential term and the completion of the qualifying process for a successor. It is a gap that probably ought to be filled for legal reasons, because there may come a time when a President may have met with an accident and be temporarily unable to take the oath, or there may be some other unavoidable delay. The constitution gives Congress power to meet all these contingencies, but adequate laws fulfilling the constitutional purpose have never been passed.

Congress, when sessions were due to expire at noon on March 4, used to face the problem of cleaning up unfinished business by simply turning the clock back, with the consent of the majority in either House, but that's a deception too ofen countenanced in legislative halls. It's better to provide by law for latitude in the time of presidential oath-taking.

STORM WARNINGS

Even before he assumed office General Eisenhower was given a taste of the hazards of making decisions as President of the United States. At first his appointment of Charles E. Wilson, former head of General Motors, was acclaimed on all sides. Wilson is a man of great administrative ability. He has had experience on the management side of industry and is aware of its problems and how they affect the defense effort. His critics were few even among Democrats.

But recently the hope of President Eisenhower to have his entire cabinet sworn in with him on inauguration day were blasted by Congressional investigators who revealed that Wilson still owned about two and a half million dollars' worth of General Motors stock. Since the Secretary of Defense must have dealings with this large and powerful company some congressmen thought Wilson's stock ownership made him unfit for the office.

Charles E. Wilson is an honest man and he would probably be quite capable of making decisions on the dealings of his department with General Motors without being prejudiced in its favor. But there is a law which precludes government officials from having investments in firms with which they must negotiate. In the light of some recent scandals and some not recent, the law is a wise one. Amending or ignoring it to keep Wilson in the cabinet would be setting a precedent which might later prove not only troublesome but dangerous.

No one's honesty has been questioned by the Congressmen. Perhaps some way will be found to keep the ability and talent of Charles E. Wilson in the new cabinet. But the problem illustrates the rocky and perilous path a President of the United States must travel in fulfilling the duties of his office.

OUR NEW LEADER

Dedicated to the service of his country since boyhood, Dwight D. Eisenhower now occupies the highest place his countrymen can afford him. He joins the great company of Americans who have filled the office of President of the United States.

Until now President Eisenhower has known and deserved nothing except the praise and esteem of his countrymen. In the difficult job ahead some of the decisions he will have to make may earn him censure and vilification from men who are affected by those decisions. Even those who acclaimed him at his inauguration may grow impatient because he cannot accomplish miracles. This is always the lot of leaders and it was borne with fortitude by Presidents as great as Washington, Jefferson and Lincoln. The public is quick to adopt a hero but it is fickle and is often apt to break his heart.

But Eisenhower is made of stern stuff. He has faith in the people and in the spirit of the country and he will not lose that faith if sometimes a few grow frightened and confused and blame him for their own failings. He is a humble and religious man and will turn for Higher counsel when his own wisdom cannot find the answers.

The prayers, the hopes and the good wishes of men everywhere are with President Eisenhower. May he move forward with the splendid courage he has displayed in the past, leading us to a brighter, happier, less-troubled time.

BETTER THAN WE THINK

If the international outlook sometimes seems black, a backward glance may restore the proper perspective. Barbara Ward, British economist, writing in the New York Times recently, asked:

"Who, in 1945, would have dared to predict the scale of reform in Japan, the establishment of independence in India, Pakistan, Ceylon, Burma and Indonesia, the immense scale of American generosity, the setting up of the Schuman pool of Western Europe's heavy industry, the first move toward aid in backward areas, and the first act to collective world defense in Korea."

In 1945, flushed with victory, we thought all the major problems solved. Now we see that that was an unrealistic attitude, and that unregarded dangers were on the horizon. Today's pessimism may be equally misjudged.

The first of the year is always a significant date. It's the springboard hour for another tussle with the income tax.

Some people don't have anything to say. And it takes a long time for them to say it.

"S-s-s-steady, I-Ike!"

Edson's Washington News Notebook

By PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

Washington, (NEA)—President Dwight Eisenhower's inaugural message should bring cheer to believers in international cooperation, and gloom to the isolationists.

The message was a masterpiece of careful planning. Its short sentences are crystal clear. The perfection of its organization can be easily shown by the fact that the whole speech can be condensed to a half-dozen sentences and clauses in the President's own words. No paraphrasing is necessary. Here, in capsule form, is its essence:

". . . the future shall belong to the free.

"* * * we who are free must proclaim anew our faith.

"The enemies of this faith know no God but force . . .

". . . destiny has laid upon our country the responsibility of the free world's leadership.

"We must be ready to dare all for our country.

"We must be willing, individually and as a nation, to accept whatever sacrifices may be required of us."

President Eisenhower's message is as direct as that.

There will undoubtedly be much effort to read between the lines of this speech, or to read into it meaning which may not be there.

For instance, the cynical may say that "to dare all for our country" means to risk a third world war.

Or it may be said that "to accept whatever sacrifices may be required" means still higher taxes for still greater foreign aid programs.

Program for Peace

Until President Eisenhower himself puts such meaning into his words, the safe thing to do is to take his inaugural message at face value as he offers it—a nine-point program for peace. For the specific measures which the new President proposes, it may be necessary to wait still a little longer. The elaboration may come in Mr. Eisenhower's promised State-of-the-Union message to Congress.

To get some inkling of what these recommendations may be, it is possible to go back to two previous efforts Mr. Eisenhower made to summarize his views.

The first effort was made in his initial campaign speech, just after he got the Republican nomination. That was his "non-political" talk before the Veterans of Foreign Wars at Los Angeles, in August. His second summary was in his final campaign broadcast from New York, the night before election.

These two statements plus the inaugural address have to be taken together to get a larger view of what is on President Eisenhower's mind as he tackles this most difficult job in the world.

Developing Ideas

The three statements vary somewhat in content, but they are not inconsistent.

Together they show the President's developing ideas. The first speech was made by a general turned politician. The second was the statement of a more seasoned political campaigner. The third shows greater maturity and awareness of world responsibility.

Condensed, here are the 10 points he made at Los Angeles:

Increase American strength. Win peace through strength of the free world. Build a prosperity not based on war. Make equality a living fact for every American. Extend the security and welfare of the people. Protect earnings from the double toll of high prices and high taxes. Serve the worthy interests of every group of people. Restore honesty in government. Insure that those who work for government are loyal. Revive in every American the faith that he can achieve a better living for himself and his family.

Three months later, see how this program had been altered slightly for an election-eve pledge to:

Serve all the people, regardless of race, creed or origin. Extend social gains. Restore integrity in government. Eliminate waste in government. Strengthen — not weaken—the laws that protect the worker. Throw full resources into a battle against inflation. Promote a healthy, prosperous agriculture. Make equality of opportunity a living reality. Stamp out disloyalty.

Build a firm, consistent foreign policy to attain peace in the world for all people.

It is on this last pledge that President Eisenhower seems to have built his inaugural message, with its nine fixed principles:

Deter the forces of aggression and promote peace. Never placate an aggressor by trading honor for security. Place the cause of country before self. Never use strength to force American institutions on other people. Help proved friends of freedom achieve their own security. Foster everywhere increased productivity and profitable trade. Strengthen regional security pacts. Reject any idea that any race or nation is expendable. Strive to make the United Nations an effective force.

Constitution Does Not Fix Time When Presidential Oath Shall Be Taken

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Jan. 23 — Since they're getting a bit "legalistic" hereabouts these days, the question might be raised as to the exact moment when Dwight D. Eisenhower became President of the United States and whether he actually complied with the Constitution when he took the oath of office at 12:31 p. m. on January 20.

Surprisingly enough, the Constitution doesn't fix a time when the oath shall be taken. It merely says: "The terms of the President and Vice-President shall end at noon on the 20th day of January."

But what does "noon" mean? Does it mean the "noon hour"—that is, from twelve to one o'clock? Or does it mean the stroke of twelve? If it's the precise second that the minute and the hour hand touches twelve o'clock, then it would be impossible for the new President to take the oath in that single second. It requires several seconds for the oath to be administered and for the oath to be repeated by the new President. The dictionary, moreover, permits the definition of "noon" as "midday."

Also, does the word "noon" mean twelve o'clock only in Washington or anywhere in the United States? For, in the three other time belts across the country, it was eleven, ten and nine o'clock in the forenoon, respectively, when the ceremony was going on in Washington.

But even if Washington time and the hour of twelve is the legal time for the occasion, it really isn't unconstitutional when the oath is taken half an hour after the stroke of twelve or several hours or even days later. One thing certain is that the outgoing President's term expired at the stroke of twelve on January 20.

The Constitution, omitting any specific time when the new President has to take the oath, says about a President:

"Before he enter on the execution of his office he shall take the following oath or affirmation."

This means that a man can be President for a while and yet not begin "the execution of his office" until he has taken the oath. There is always some lapse of minutes between the expiration of one term and the actual taking of oath by the successor, and when James Monroe succeeded himself in 1821 his first term ended on Sunday, March 4, but he was not sworn in for the second term until Monday, the 5th. Rutherford B. Hayes, on the other hand, after winning the contested election of 1876, was sworn in privately on March 3, 1877, taking the oath before the expiration of his predecesor's term.

When vice presidents have succeeded to the presidency, there have been considerable lapses of time before the taking of the oath. Thus, when President McKinley died in Buffalo, N. Y., from an assassin's bullet in the early morning hours of September 14, 1901, it was not until the late afternoon that Vice President Theodore Roosevelt was able to get to Buffalo to take the oath.

About 14 hours elapsed between the time of the death of President Harding at San Francisco on August 2, 1923, and the moment when Vice President Calvin Coolidge took the oath at Plymouth, Vt., the next afternoon. There was a lapse of a little over three hours between the time when President Franklin D. Roosevelt died at Warm Springs, Ga., on April 12, 1945, and 7:09 that same evening when Vice President Truman took the oath at the White House in Washington.

Certainly it cannot be contended logically that, in the case of a natural succession, the outgoing president does hold over or that for a little while the United States doesn't have a president, whereas, in the case of death of a president, the vice president automatically becomes president the moment breath has passed from the body of his predecessor. The simplest interpretation is that the United States had a president from the stroke of twelve on Tuesday, January 20, when Mr. Trlman's term expired, and that Dwight Eisenhower held the office even though the oath was not administered at once.

The only question that could arise is over the legality of any steps taken if there is an unavoidable delay in taking the oath. Some days a new president might become involved in a lawsuit in which it might be argued that certain powers exercised at a given moment in his behalf by some subordinate department or agency were not valid because there was no president in office at the time.

Congress has never taken care of this contingency, but it has the power nevertheless under the constitution to provide for the handling of any and all vacancies. Thus, the 20th Amendment says:

"The Congress may by law provide for the case wherein neither a president elect nor a vice-president elect shall have qualified, declaring who shall then act as president, or the manner in which one who is to act shall be selected, and such person shall act accordingly until a president or vice-president shall have qualified."

Hence, Congress may also provide for the legalization of any acts by agencies or departments of the government taken in the name of the President between the time of the expiration of a presidential term and the completion of the qualifying process for a successor. It is a gap that probably ought to be filled for legal reasons, because there may come a time when a President may have met with an accident and be temporarily unable to take the oath, or there may be some other unavoidable delay. The constitution gives Congress power to meet all these contingencies, but adequate laws fulfilling the constitutioal purpose have never been passed.

Congress, when sessions were due to expire at noon on March 4, used to face the problem of cleaning up unfinished business by simply turning the clock back, with the consent of the majority in either House, but that's a deception too ofen countenanced in legislative halls. It's better to provide by law for latitude in the time of presidential oath-taking.

Your Income Tax

By FRANCIS J. KELLY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Washington—If your 1952 income was $5,000 or more, you must use long-form 1040 in making out your income tax return.

That four-page, white paper form also is the proper blank if you:

1) Had more than $100 income from sources other than wages from which taxes were withheld, or

2) Had any income from a business or profession, farming, rents, royalties, annuities, or transactions in securities, or

3) Claim status as "head of a household," as defined in the tax laws. A widow with dependents may claim such a classification, for example.

Practically always you will save money by making a long-form return if your non-business deductions run more than 10 per cent of your income. This form may be used for incomes below $5,000 as well as above.

Read Instruction Booklet

The Bureau of Internal Revenue has made a considerable effort in recent years to simplify the tax return form. Each is now accompanied by a 12-page book of instructions designed to make things easier for the taxpayer.

Persons who use long-form 1040 must calculate their own tax instead of picking it out of a table. A space for the computation is provided on page 3 of the form.

Before starting to fill out the blank, it is well to assemble data on your income and various deductible expenses.

Only a few types of income are exempt from tax. These include social security benefits, soldiers' pay in combat zones, some veterans' benefits, gifts, inheritances, interest on state and municipal bonds, and proceeds of a life insurance policy upon death.

Allowable deductions include non-federal taxes, interest paid out, contributions to religious, scientific and charitable groups, losses from fire, storm, flood and theft, and some medical and dental expenses. Spaces are provided on page 3 of form 1040 for listing each of these categories.

Out-of-town travel expenses, and other expenses paid by your employer and included in your wages, may be deducted from gross income on page 1 of the form. This saves you from paying taxes on expense money.

Lump Sum Deductions

If your income is $5,000 or more, you do not necessarily have to list your deductions in detail. You have the option of deducting 10 per cent of your income instead. Married persons filing separately are allowed a $500 deduction. The top limit on lump deductions for all other taxpayers is $1,000.

In filling out your return you will need to know how much you have already paid on your 1952 taxes — by withholding, or paid with tax estimates during the year. You employer is required to furnish you a form W-2 stating your total wages for the year and amount of tax withheld.

The original W-2 form must be attached to your return.

Generally, married couples find it advantageous to file joint rather than separate returns. This is because the current law permits income splitting, which in turn means a lower tax. However, in a few cases, where husband and wife both have income, separate returns may be preferable.

Joint returns must be signed by both the husband and wife.

It is important to keep an exact copy of your return in case you later wish to amend it in any way. Also, keep a copy of the W-2 form furnished by your employer.

Only two states have more counties than Kentucky, which has 120 of them.

Scimeca of Highland was fourth. Other Ulster county boys who placed were B. Wilklow of Highland, eighth, and Richard Mazzella, Marlborough, 10th.

BIG PIPE SPANS CONTINENT—With the bridging of a 625-mile gap between Superior, Wis., and Sarnia, Ont., Canada will put into operation the world's first transcontinental oil pipeline. By end of 1956 oil will flow uninterruptedly from Edmonton, heart of Canada's booming oil industry, to Portland, Me. The industry now must depend on Great Lakes tankers, which are ice-locked (inset) more than four months each year. The half-finished, 711-mile link from Edmonton to Vancouver is expected to begin pumping oil over the Rocky Mountains by next fall. Above Newsmap shows the route taken by the 3500-mile artery, which will be able to move oil at the rate of 200,000 barrels a day.

Your Income Tax

By FRANCIS J. KELLY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Washington—If your 1952 income was $5,000 or more, you must use long-form 1040 in making out your income tax return.

That four-page, white paper form also is the proper blank if you:

1) Had more than $100 income from sources other than wages from which taxes were withheld, or

2) Had any income from a business or profession, farming, rents, royalties, annuities, or transactions in securities, or

3) Claim status as "head of a household," as defined in the tax laws. A widow with dependents may claim such a classification, for example.

Practically always you will save money by making a long-form return if your non-business deductions run more than 10 per cent of your income. This form may be used for incomes below $5,000 as well as above.

Read Instruction Booklet

The Bureau of Internal Revenue has made a considerable effort in recent years to simplify the tax return form. Each is now accompanied by a 12-page book of instructions designed to make things easier for the taxpayer.

Persons who use long-form 1040 must calculate their own tax instead of picking it out of a table. A space for the computation is provided on page 3 of the form.

Before starting to fill out the blank, it is well to assemble data on your income and various deductible expenses.

Only a few types of income are exempt from tax. These include social security benefits, soldiers' pay in combat zones, some veterans' benefits, gifts, inheritances, interest on state and municipal bonds, and proceeds of a life insurance policy upon death.

Allowable deductions include non-federal taxes, interest paid out, contributions to religious, scientific and charitable groups, losses from fire, storm, flood and theft, and some medical and dental expenses. Spaces are provided on page 3 of form 1040 for listing each of these categories.

Out-of-town travel expenses, and other expenses paid by your employer and included in your wages, may be deducted from gross income on page 1 of the form. This saves you from paying taxes on expense money.

Lump Sum Deductions

If your income is $5,000 or more, you do not necessarily have to list your deductions in detail. You have the option of deducting 10 per cent of your income instead. Married persons filing separately are allowed a $500 deduction. The top limit on lump deductions for all other taxpayers is $1,000.

In filling out your return you will need to know how much you have already paid on your 1952 taxes — by withholding, or paid with tax estimates during the year. You employer is required to furnish you a form W-2 stating your total wages for the year and amount of tax withheld.

The original W-2 form must be attached to your return.

Generally, married couples find it advantageous to file joint rather than separate returns. This is because the current law permits income splitting, which in turn means a lower tax. However, in a few cases, where husband and wife both have income, separate returns may be preferable.

Joint returns must be signed by both the husband and wife.

It is important to keep an exact copy of your return in case you later wish to amend it in any way. Also, keep a copy of the W-2 form furnished by your employer.

Only two states have more counties than Kentucky, which has 120 of them.

Veteran Volunteers Plan First Annual Banquet on Feb. 12

The Veteran Volunteers Firemen's Association will hold its first annual banquet Thursday night, Feb. 12, at the Roseland on Washington avenue, Raymond Radel, secretary, has announced.

Special guests of the group will be all 50-year members from all of the Kingston fire companies.

Secretary Radel said today that brisk sale of tickets indicates a full house for the first annual affair.

James Locke, chairman of the committee on arrangements, reports that Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy will have a special figure in firemanic circles to address the group. The speaker will be announced later.

Any firemen in the city, Radel said today, who has not been contacted and would like to purchase a ticket, may get in touch with the delegates from his company or contact Chairman Locke, 2295-W or himself, telephone 3025-M.

Reservations for the banquet, however, must be made by Feb. 6, the secretary pointed out.

The VVA consists of all the Volunteer Fire Companies in Kingston with six delegates from each company. All volunteer firemen are welcome to attend any meeting of the association. Meetings are held three times a year on the last Thursday of January, May and October.

BABSON on BUSINESS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 23—Another inauguration is over. Dwight Eisenhower is now President of the world's most powerful nation. He is a man of sterling character, tremendous energy and marvelous contacts. So far as it is possible in a democracy, he will be a great President. But "democracy" is a synonym for "dilemma." Hence, before rushing to expand plants or buy stocks, it is well to consider at least five dilemmas which we must face in 1953.

Korea—Dilemma

The American people want their sons back from Korea and, at the same time, don't want Korea to fall into Communist hands. This is a dilemma with which Mr. Truman and his military aids have honestly struggled. The promime of Ike to visit Korea and try to accomplish the impossible was a great factor in electing him. Will people turn against him when he reports that 1953 will see no solution to this dilemma, notwithstanding his hopefulness?

Communism—Dilemma 2

The new President this week reiterated his determination to stop Russia's spread of communism. But he knows that communism is not confined to Russia. It is the name for a world revolutionary movement of billions of unhappy people. Russia has seized and capitalized this great social tidal wave; while the United States has taken the side of the conservative owners of property and tried to check it. Eisenhower must be sympathetic with these downtrodden races, but he knows also if he changes our present policy he would be cursed as sympathetic to communism. This is dilemma 2 which he must face in 1953.

Foreign Imports—Dilemma 3

Voters are demanding a reduction in our aid to Europe and Japan. Our new President knows that this can be done only by lowering tariffs and admitting more foreign goods into our markets. But he also knows that such a program would make the U. S. business interests who elected him very angry. Such a move might also cause unemployment here at home, which would be welcomed by the Democrats. Hence, this third dilemma. Competition during 1953 will be very severe, even among U. S. manufacturers, without being handicapped by greater imports.

Balancing the Budget—Dilemma 4

Our new President will operate a more honest and economical Federal Government. There will be less money spent by all departments, including the military. More efficient operations may be expected. But this deflationary program may cause unemployment and lower profits. As most Federal income is derived from taxing profits, this would mean lower tax receipts. This is a Dilemma which Eisenhower must face in 1953.

Reducing Taxes—Dilemma 5

The excess-profits tax will end during 1953. The capital-gains tax could be much reduced, and investors would benefit from the reduction. It exists only as a political sop to radical labor. Perhaps a token reduction of five per cent in income taxes and 50 per cent in certain excise taxes will be granted in 1953. But if we have declining profits and dividends, as a result of Eisenhower fulfilling all his other promises, can he reduce taxes much more in 1953? Never before has any new President inherited such abnormally high taxes, upon the government's spending of which our prosperity is largely dependent. Hence, this is dilemma 5.

Needed—a Spiritual Awakening

I am thankful that Dwight D. Eisenhower is now President of our country. Unless World War III comes (and if it comes Eisenhower would be needed more than ever), inflation can be curbed. Hence, we have confidence. This is a great step forward. But the American people — except in emergencies — are basically business and employment minded. Our marvelous growth has been due largely to this fact. We do not like to sacrifice. Eisenhower believes that what is best for the world as a whole will ultimately be best for America. But only a great spiritual awakening, brought about by some adversity, will make our voters believe and act likewise.

Lewis Executed At Sing Sing Prison

Ossining, Jan. 23 (AP)—Stephen D. Lewis kept a postponed date with death last night in Sing Sing Prison's electric chair.

The 43-year-old Lewis, granted a last-minute reprieve two weeks ago, had hoped for a commutation of sentence—but it never came.

He entered the death chamber at 11:02 p. m. (EST), smiled at witnesses, and said nothing. Four minutes later he was pronounced dead.

Lewis was convicted last May 1 in Batavia, N. Y., of the shotgun slaying of Arthur Anheier in 1951. The state contended Lewis was in love with Anheier's wife. Lewis was from Rochester, N. Y.

Last Jan. 8, Lewis had eaten his "last meal," his head had been shaved. Forty minutes before he was to enter the execution chamber, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey granted him a two-week stay.

As before his first scheduled execution, Lewis refused any special last meal yesterday. He ate the regular prison fare of baked rice with bacon and tomato sauce, pickles, bread and jam.

The two-week reprieve was granted by Dewey at the request of Lewis' counsel, "to permit further consideration of the application for executive clemency." The district attorney concurred with the defense attorney's request.

Bridge experts are a versatile group, so I wasn't especially surprised when my friend, Albert Morehead, recently brought out a book of crossword puzzles. They are good puzzles, to be sure, but I will probably continue to think of Morehead primarily as a first-class bridge player and bridge writer.

In today's hand, Morehead's skill as a player is demonstrated. When West opened the queen of diamonds, against Morehead's logical contract of four hearts, he resisted the temptation to cover with dummy's king.

Such a play would, of course, establish dummy's ten of diamonds. The trouble was, however, that East would immediately switch to clubs after winning the first trick with the ace of diamonds. The defenders would thereupon take three club tricks to set the contract immediately.

When Morehead played a low diamond from the dummy at the first trick East naturally played a low diamond from his hand. He assumed that his partner was leading from diamonds headed by the queen and jack, and East wasn't even sure that South would follow suit to the first trick.

East could have been a hero by playing the ace of diamonds, anyway, but he cannot be blamed for failing to make this miraculous play.

After West won the first trick with the queen of diamonds, no further defense could defeat the contract. West actually shifted to a trump, as good a defense as any, whereupon Morehead drew three rounds of trumps ending in dummy. He then led the king of diamonds from dummy, ruffing out East's ace.

It was now simple to discard one club on the ten of diamonds, run five spades in order to discard all the clubs from dummy, and ruff a club in dummy. Morehead thus won 11 tricks instead of being set one.

About 11,000 Americans lose their lives in fires each year. More than one half of these fire victims are women and children.

BABSON on BUSINESS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 23—Another inauguration is over. Dwight Eisenhower is now President of the world's most powerful nation. He is a man of sterling character, tremendous energy and marvelous contacts. So far as it is possible in a democracy, he will be a great President. But "democracy" is a synonym for "dilemma." Hence, before rushing to expand plants or buy stocks, it is well to consider at least five dilemmas which we must face in 1953.

Korea—Dilemma

The American people want their sons back from Korea and, at the same time, don't want Korea to fall into Communist hands. This is a dilemma with which Mr. Truman and his military aids have honestly struggled. The promime of Ike to visit Korea and try to accomplish the impossible was a great factor in electing him. Will people turn against him when he reports that 1953 will see no solution to this dilemma, notwithstanding his hopefulness?

Communism—Dilemma 2

The new President this week reiterated his determination to stop Russia's spread of communism. But he knows that communism is not confined to Russia. It is the name for a world revolutionary movement of billions of unhappy people. Russia has seized and capitalized this great social tidal wave; while the United States has taken the side of the conservative owners of property and tried to check it. Eisenhower must be sympathetic with these downtrodden races, but he knows also if he changes our present policy he would be cursed as sympathetic to communism. This is dilemma 2 which he must face in 1953.

Foreign Imports—Dilemma 3

Voters are demanding a reduction in our aid to Europe and Japan. Our new President knows that this can be done only by lowering tariffs and admitting more foreign goods into our markets. But he also knows that such a program would make the U. S. business interests who elected him very angry. Such a move might also cause unemployment here at home, which would be welcomed by the Democrats. Hence, this third dilemma. Competition during 1953 will be very severe, even among U. S. manufacturers, without being handicapped by greater imports.

Balancing the Budget—Dilemma 4

Our new President will operate a more honest and economical Federal Government. There will be less money spent by all departments, including the military. More efficient operations may be expected. But this deflationary program may cause unemployment and lower profits. As most Federal income is derived from taxing profits, this would mean lower tax receipts. This is a Dilemma which Eisenhower must face in 1953.

Reducing Taxes—Dilemma 5

The excess-profits tax will end during 1953. The capital-gains tax could be much reduced, and investors would benefit from the reduction. It exists only as a political sop to radical labor. Perhaps a token reduction of five per cent in income taxes and 50 per cent in certain excise taxes will be granted in 1953. But if we have declining profits and dividends, as a result of Eisenhower fulfilling all his other promises, can he reduce taxes much more in 1953? Never before has any new President inherited such abnormally high taxes, upon the government's spending of which our prosperity is largely dependent. Hence, this is dilemma 5.

Needed—a Spiritual Awakening

I am thankful that Dwight D. Eisenhower is now President of our country. Unless World War III comes (and if it comes Eisenhower would be needed more than ever), inflation can be curbed. Hence, we have confidence. This is a great step forward. But the American people — except in emergencies — are basically business and employment minded. Our marvelous growth has been due largely to this fact. We do not like to sacrifice. Eisenhower believes that what is best for the world as a whole will ultimately be best for America. But only a great spiritual awakening, brought about by some adversity, will make our voters believe and act likewise.

She received a master's degree in 1912 from Cornell and her doctorate from Columbia University at the age of 85. A native of Fort Wayne, Ind., she lived in Atlantic City, N. J., until a year ago. During her teacher career she was assistant principal of the Comstock School, New York city, taught in Cuba under the auspices of the Episcopal Church and in Puerto Rico. Two sisters and a brother survive.

Lewis Executed At Sing Sing Prison

Ossining, Jan. 23 (AP)—Stephen D. Lewis kept a postponed date with death last night in Sing Sing Prison's electric chair.

The 43-year-old Lewis, granted a last-minute reprieve two weeks ago, had hoped for a commutation of sentence—but it never came.

He entered the death chamber at 11:02 p. m. (EST), smiled at witnesses, and said nothing. Four minutes later he was pronounced dead.

Lewis was convicted last May 1 in Batavia, N. Y., of the shotgun slaying of Arthur Anheier in 1951. The state contended Lewis was in love with Anheier's wife. Lewis was from Rochester, N. Y.

Last Jan. 8, Lewis had eaten his "last meal," his head had been shaved. Forty minutes before he was to enter the execution chamber, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey granted him a two-week stay.

As before his first scheduled execution, Lewis refused any special last meal yesterday. He ate the regular prison fare of baked rice with bacon and tomato sauce, pickles, bread and jam.

The two-week reprieve was granted by Dewey at the request of Lewis' counsel, "to permit further consideration of the application for executive clemency." The district attorney concurred with the defense attorney's request.

Bridge experts are a versatile group, so I wasn't especially surprised when my friend, Albert Morehead, recently brought out a book of crossword puzzles. They are good puzzles, to be sure, but I will probably continue to think of Morehead primarily as a first-class bridge player and bridge writer.

In today's hand, Morehead's skill as a player is demonstrated. When West opened the queen of diamonds, against Morehead's logical contract of four hearts, he resisted the temptation to cover with dummy's king.

Such a play would, of course, establish dummy's ten of diamonds. The trouble was, however, that East would immediately switch to clubs after winning the first trick with the ace of diamonds. The defenders would thereupon take three club tricks to set the contract immediately.

When Morehead played a low diamond from the dummy at the first trick East naturally played a low diamond from his hand. He assumed that his partner was leading from diamonds headed by the queen and jack, and East wasn't even sure that South would follow suit to the first trick.

East could have been a hero by playing the ace of diamonds, anyway, but he cannot be blamed for failing to make this miraculous play.

After West won the first trick with the queen of diamonds, no further defense could defeat the contract. West actually shifted to a trump, as good a defense as any, whereupon Morehead drew three rounds of trumps ending in dummy. He then led the king of diamonds from dummy, ruffing out East's ace.

It was now simple to discard one club on the ten of diamonds, run five spades in order to discard all the clubs from dummy, and ruff a club in dummy. Morehead thus won 11 tricks instead of being set one.

About 11,000 Americans lose their lives in fires each year. More than one half of these fire victims are women and children.

Husbands in Africa Cited as Examples Of Modern Learning

By DOROTHY ROE
(Women's Editor)

The next time you hear a married man expound that "women's place is in the home," you might point to certain husbands in equatorial Africa as true examples of modern enlightenment.

These broadminded gents let their wives go off globe-trotting for a year while they stay home and mind the children.

Uganda Matrons

Two young matrons from Uganda, in the heart of Africa, are among a group of 20 native leaders from all over the world who are in the United States to study YWCA techniques in various communities.

The two emancipated Ugandese are Mrs. Rebecca Mulira, mother of five children, the youngest an infant-in-arms, and Mrs. Kitty Kibuka, who has four children. Both say their husbands practically pushed them on the plane, promising to take good care of the small fry while they are away.

Mrs. Mulira explains that she will be a better mother "after this fairy-tale visit to America." She is active in the Uganda Council of Women, the African Women's Society, the Young Wives, the Mothers' Union and the YWCA in Uganda. Her husband is a specialist in African languages and has been a professor at the School of African Studies, London University. His wife describes him as "the most understanding and cooperative in the world."

Founds Nursery School

Mrs. Kibuka founded the first African Nursery School in Uganda, is president of the young group of Tampala, her native city, and plans to teach modern child-care methods to native mothers on her return.

Four of the other 20 young women in the group also have small children. There is, for instance, Mrs. Alfreda De Silva, of Ceylon, a Singhalse by birth, who has an 8-year-old daughter. Although she broadcasts regularly over radio Celyon she says, "This is absolutely the first time I ever went anywhere alone in my life."

When she's at home, her husband always accompanies her, even on shopping tours, but he told her she must not miss this experience in America.

Mrs. Hiroka Yoshimura, of Tokyo, has two sons, aged 8 and 11, and a 10-year-old daughter Her great interest is in studying family relations.

Mrs. Consuelo Herrera of the Philippines left her two children in the care of her husband and her four sisters.

Mrs. Sevim Saka of Instanbul, left her small sons and daughter in care of her physician husband, who, she says, was "very pleased."

Here for Nine Months

The women will spend about nine months in the United States, taking on-the-spot training in YW organizations scattered throughout the country.

Can you imagine what an American husband would say if his wife announced:

"I'm leaving the children with you for a year, dear, while I go to Uganda."

Home Bureau

Olive Unit

The Olive Home Bureau unit will meet Tuesday, Jan. 27, at the West Shokan town garage. Mrs. Joan Brunet will teach the group on fagoting and hemstitching. Members are asked to bring items to work on. Twenty members attended the luncheon at the home of Mrs. Edna Bishop. Mrs. Ellen Schmoekel was elected chairman, Mrs. Fred John, vice-chairman and Mrs. Fay Muller, secretary and treasurer.

4-H Club Pie Queens Honored at Dinner in Bethany Hall

The happy queens who won the pie baking contests beam with delight as they display awards bestowed upon them at a dinner Thursday evening in Bethany Hall. The contest was held in cooperation with the Eastern New York 4-H Clubs and the New York State Horticultural Society. Gerald Maier, vice-president of the society, made the awards. The queens, from left, Marilyn Estes of Poughkeepsie, cherry pie; Nancy Clum of Salt Point, apple pie; and Jane Lieff of Montgomery, currant pie. (Freeman Photo)

Dutchess, Orange Contestants Win Pie Competitions at Horticultural Exhibition

Dutchess county contestants distinguished themselves Thursday in the pie-baking and demonstration competitions, sponsored by 4-H Clubs and held in conjunction with the annual New York State Horticultural Society's Show in progress at the Armory on Manor avenue. Miss Nancy Clum of Salt Point was named apple pie queen; Miss Marilyn Estes of Poughkeepsie, cherry pie queen; the Misses Pauline Cookingham and Korin Erickson, waldorf salad queens. All represented the Dutchess County 4-H Clubs. Miss Jane Lieff of Montgomery, Orange county, won the miscellaneous pie title of queen for her currant pie. Miss Betty Ann Engstrom of Chatham, Columbia county, took top honors for Johnny Apple Seed Bread, in the demonstrations.

Ulster county contestants fared well too, in the contests. Nancy Ellsworth of Port Ewen received a blue ribbon in the cherry pie group; Faith Gersback of Hurley, a white ribbon for apple pie; and Enid Goetchius of Hurley, a red ribbon for currant pie. Nancy Hutton was scheduled to represent the county 4-H in the food demonstrations, but was ill and could not participate.

Edmund R. Bower, county 4-H Club agent, commended the local young people for "an excellent showing in the stiff competition. We are all very proud of them," he said. Mr. Bower explained that Nancy Ellsworth's pie received a blue ribbon because "it rated better than second place."

Speedy and efficient were the future pastry chefs of New York state, as 22 members of 4-H Clubs from 10 counties, prepared apple, cherry, strawberry, currant and blueberry pies before a large mixed audience during the pie-baking contests at the Armory on Thursday morning. A variety of foods were demonstrated by 20 4-H members during the afternoon.

All looking very attractive and self-assured, the contestants from Ulster County 4-H Clubs were Faith Gersback, apple pie; Enid Goetchius, currant pie; and Nancy Hutton, tarts; all of Hurley; Nancy Ellsworth of Port Ewen, cherry pie; and Shirley Pratt of Kyserike.

Visiting contestants from other counties were, in the apple pie contest, Carol Feller, Glenco Mills, Columbia county; Nancy Clum, Salt Point, Dutchess; Arlene King, Catskill, Greene; Anne Lesniak, Herkimer; Gladys Bullock, Goshen, Orange; Annaliese Findeisen, Garrattsville, Otsego; Patricia Oathout, Scotia, Schenectady.

Here for the cherry pie contest were Beth Egan, North Claverack, Columbia; Alice Constable, Walton, Delaware; Marilyn Estes, Poughkeepsie, Dutchess; Mathilda Travis, Leeds, Greene; Jean Weakley, Herkimer; Mary Mulhair, Goshen, Orange; Robert Black, New Lisbon, Otsego.

In the miscellaneous pie group, the visitors were Barbara Thiel, Stamford, Delaware; Helen Holdridge, Greene; Jane Lieff, Montgomery, Orange; Joyce Ellmauer, Oneonta, Otsego; and Brenda Fletcher, Delanson, Schenectady county.

Scoring for technique in the three divisions were Mrs. Doris Gerhardt, director, Mid-Hudson Dairy Council; and Stewart Fish, Greene County 4-H Club agent.

Miss Louise Archibald, Ulster County assistant 4-H Club agent, was kept busy throughout the day, directing the young people, and acting as a general source of information for all.

Ages of the contestants ranged from 11 to 17 years. One little 11-year old, not much taller than the table where she worked, Jean Weakley of Herkimer county, took a little longer than the others in preparing her cherry pie, but when completed, it was one in which an even experienced baker might well take pride.

The participants lined up at a long table, facing the audience. The individual working space was approximately 30 inches. Materials required in the project were neatly arranged on individual trays. Although contestants confessed to considerable nervousness, none showed any signs of it, as they awaited the starting signal.

Technique, used in the first steps of mixing the ingredients, was more or less similar. A few of the participants worked very quick and barged ahead, while others were more methodical, and concentrated as though their very lives depended upon the outcome.

Variety entered the picture when the dough rolling point was reached. Many rolling pins were covered, while others were lightly floured. Different methods of lining the plate were also noted. A few folded the dough into quarters, and others used a half-fold.

Two contestants used a trick which appealed to The Freeman reporter. In the final rolling, the dough was wound lightly about the pin. Then, holding the pin directly over the pie plate, the dough was unwound, and the lower crust fell into perfect position for continuing with the next step.

Unusual because of its size was the rolling pin used by Gladys Bullock of Goshen. The pin measured approximately eight inches in length and three inches or less in diameter. She explained it had been used in her family "for a very long time." Its small size made for easy handling.

While the contests were in progress, young women were busy serving the spectators with hot cider and delicious apple bars, made by 4-H members in the Hudson Valley.

The one, lone male contestant worked like an "old hand" at pastry making. Robert Black of Otsego county, a high school junior student at Morris Central School, placed second in the 1951 apple pie competition. In this year's contest, he was entered in the cherry pie division. Also in 1951, he won first place in a contest sponsored by WDOS, Oneonta. Robert's chief 4-H project, however, is raising pheasants. He receives one-day old birds from the state, without charge. For each one raised, the state pays one dollars. Last year, he raised 30 of the 33 birds received. The birds are released when eight weeks old.

Projects pursued by the young people, through their 4-H clubs, were enthusiastically described to The Freeman reporter. One might assume that baking was the foremost interest of the contestants. We learned, however, that it was but one of many projects which they pursue. Gladys Bullock of Goshen described with great pride, her Holstein cow and heifer, which took a red ribbon at the 1952 Orange county fair. Miss Bullock is 17 years old and has been a 4-H member for five years. She's working for "blue at the next county fair."

And in local group of contestants, 12-year-old Enid Goetchius has been baking pies for two years. During that period she has made pies for friends, sick persons and for the Hurley school food sales. Asked how she became interested in baking, she quickly replied, "oh, I like to eat." Another of her 4-H projects is sewing.

Village Landmark Saved

Goshen (AP)—When the village board recently found itself hard-pressed for funds to repair the village clock in the Presbyterian Church tower, out-of-town help saved the day. John W. Richardson of White Plains sent word that he would put up $600 of the estimated $1,800 repair cost because as a boy at the village school he learned to tell time by the village clock. Another Goshen native, Dr. C. Hudson Thompson, offered to match the amount as a memorial to a beloved uncle, former organist at the church. The village now thinks it may be able to scrape up the other $600 if sentiment does not move other individuals to contribute.

The teachers had their choice of attending these or any of eight other group meetings.

Kingston Fortunate

During the two-day conference, some twenty-five local citizens, including parents, businessmen, doctors and others gave their time to attend the conference as speakers in various groups. "Kingston schools are fortunate in having local citizens who will give of their time to help our schools arrive at sound educational policies", said Arthur J. Laidlaw, superintendent of schools.

Kingston Board of Education members who participated in today's session were William Rylance, Mrs. Vincent G. Connelly, Mrs. John D. Schoonmaker, Jr. and Mrs. Chester A. Baltz, Sr. General chairman of the conference was Harry T. Gumaer, MJM school principal.

Husbands in Africa Cited as Examples Of Modern Learning

By DOROTHY ROE
(Women's Editor)

The next time you hear a married man expound that "women's place is in the home," you might point to certain husbands in equatorial Africa as true examples of modern enlightenment.

These broadminded gents let their wives go off globe-trotting for a year while they stay home and mind the children.

Uganda Matrons

Two young matrons from Uganda, in the heart of Africa, are among a group of 20 native leaders from all over the world who are in the United States to study YWCA techniques in various communities.

The two emancipated Ugandese are Mrs. Rebecca Mulira, mother of five children, the youngest an infant-in-arms, and Mrs. Kitty Kibuka, who has four children. Both say their husbands practically pushed them on the plane, promising to take good care of the small fry while they are away.

Mrs. Mulira explains that she will be a better mother "after this fairy-tale visit to America." She is active in the Uganda Council of Women, the African Women's Society, the Young Wives, the Mothers' Union and the YWCA in Uganda. Her husband is a specialist in African languages and has been a professor at the School of African Studies, London University. His wife describes him as "the most understanding and cooperative in the world."

Founds Nursery School

Mrs. Kibuka founded the first African Nursery School in Uganda, is president of the young group of Tampala, her native city, and plans to teach modern child-care methods to native mothers on her return.

Four of the other 20 young women in the group also have small children. There is, for instance, Mrs. Alfreda De Silva, of Ceylon, a Singhalse by birth, who has an 8-year-old daughter. Although she broadcasts regularly over radio Celyon she says, "This is absolutely the first time I ever went anywhere alone in my life."

When she's at home, her husband always accompanies her, even on shopping tours, but he told her she must not miss this experience in America.

Mrs. Hiroka Yoshimura, of Tokyo, has two sons, aged 8 and 11, and a 10-year-old daughter Her great interest is in studying family relations.

Mrs. Consuelo Herrera of the Philippines left her two children in the care of her husband and her four sisters.

Mrs. Sevim Saka of Instanbul, left her small sons and daughter in care of her physician husband, who, she says, was "very pleased."

Here for Nine Months

The women will spend about nine months in the United States, taking on-the-spot training in YW organizations scattered throughout the country.

Can you imagine what an American husband would say if his wife announced:

"I'm leaving the children with you for a year, dear, while I go to Uganda."

Home Bureau

Olive Unit

The Olive Home Bureau unit will meet Tuesday, Jan. 27, at the West Shokan town garage. Mrs. Joan Brunet will teach the group on fagoting and hemstitching. Members are asked to bring items to work on. Twenty members attended the luncheon at the home of Mrs. Edna Bishop. Mrs. Ellen Schmoekel was elected chairman, Mrs. Fred John, vice-chairman and Mrs. Fay Muller, secretary and treasurer.

4-H Club Pie Queens Honored at Dinner in Bethany Hall

The happy queens who won the pie baking contests beam with delight as they display awards bestowed upon them at a dinner Thursday evening in Bethany Hall. The contest was held in cooperation with the Eastern New York 4-H Clubs and the New York State Horticultural Society. Gerald Maier, vice-president of the society, made the awards. The queens, from left, Marilyn Estes of Poughkeepsie, cherry pie; Nancy Clum of Salt Point, apple pie; and Jane Lieff of Montgomery, currant pie. (Freeman Photo)

Dutchess, Orange Contestants Win Pie Competitions at Horticultural Exhibition

Dutchess county contestants distinguished themselves Thursday in the pie-baking and demonstration competitions, sponsored by 4-H Clubs and held in conjunction with the annual New York State Horticultural Society's Show in progress at the Armory on Manor avenue. Miss Nancy Clum of Salt Point was named apple pie queen; Miss Marilyn Estes of Poughkeepsie, cherry pie queen; the Misses Pauline Cookingham and Korin Erickson, waldorf salad queens. All represented the Dutchess County 4-H Clubs. Miss Jane Lieff of Montgomery, Orange county, won the miscellaneous pie title of queen for her currant pie. Miss Betty Ann Engstrom of Chatham, Columbia county, took top honors for Johnny Apple Seed Bread, in the demonstrations.

Ulster county contestants fared well too, in the contests. Nancy Ellsworth of Port Ewen received a blue ribbon in the cherry pie group; Faith Gersback of Hurley, a white ribbon for apple pie; and Enid Goetchius of Hurley, a red ribbon for currant pie. Nancy Hutton was scheduled to represent the county 4-H in the food demonstrations, but was ill and could not participate.

Edmund R. Bower, county 4-H Club agent, commended the local young people for "an excellent showing in the stiff competition. We are all very proud of them," he said. Mr. Bower explained that Nancy Ellsworth's pie received a blue ribbon because "it rated better than second place."

Speedy and efficient were the future pastry chefs of New York state, as 22 members of 4-H Clubs from 10 counties, prepared apple, cherry, strawberry, currant and blueberry pies before a large mixed audience during the pie-baking contests at the Armory on Thursday morning. A variety of foods were demonstrated by 20 4-H members during the afternoon.

All looking very attractive and self-assured, the contestants from Ulster County 4-H Clubs were Faith Gersback, apple pie; Enid Goetchius, currant pie; and Nancy Hutton, tarts; all of Hurley; Nancy Ellsworth of Port Ewen, cherry pie; and Shirley Pratt of Kyserike.

Visiting contestants from other counties were, in the apple pie contest, Carol Feller, Glenco Mills, Columbia county; Nancy Clum, Salt Point, Dutchess; Arlene King, Catskill, Greene; Anne Lesniak, Herkimer; Gladys Bullock, Goshen, Orange; Annaliese Findeisen, Garrattsville, Otsego; Patricia Oathout, Scotia, Schenectady.

Here for the cherry pie contest were Beth Egan, North Claverack, Columbia; Alice Constable, Walton, Delaware; Marilyn Estes, Poughkeepsie, Dutchess; Mathilda Travis, Leeds, Greene; Jean Weakley, Herkimer; Mary Mulhair, Goshen, Orange; Robert Black, New Lisbon, Otsego.

In the miscellaneous pie group, the visitors were Barbara Thiel, Stamford, Delaware; Helen Holdridge, Greene; Jane Lieff, Montgomery, Orange; Joyce Ellmauer, Oneonta, Otsego; and Brenda Fletcher, Delanson, Schenectady county.

Scoring for technique in the three divisions were Mrs. Doris Gerhardt, director, Mid-Hudson Dairy Council; and Stewart Fish, Greene County 4-H Club agent.

Miss Louise Archibald, Ulster County assistant 4-H Club agent, was kept busy throughout the day, directing the young people, and acting as a general source of information for all.

Ages of the contestants ranged from 11 to 17 years. One little 11-year old, not much taller than the table where she worked, Jean Weakley of Herkimer county, took a little longer than the others in preparing her cherry pie, but when completed, it was one in which an even experienced baker might well take pride.

The participants lined up at a long table, facing the audience. The individual working space was approximately 30 inches. Materials required in the project were neatly arranged on individual trays. Although contestants confessed to considerable nervousness, none showed any signs of it, as they awaited the starting signal.

Technique, used in the first steps of mixing the ingredients, was more or less similar. A few of the participants worked very quick and barged ahead, while others were more methodical, and concentrated as though their very lives depended upon the outcome.

Variety entered the picture when the dough rolling point was reached. Many rolling pins were covered, while others were lightly floured. Different methods of lining the plate were also noted. A few folded the dough into quarters, and others used a half-fold.

Two contestants used a trick which appealed to The Freeman reporter. In the final rolling, the dough was wound lightly about the pin. Then, holding the pin directly over the pie plate, the dough was unwound, and the lower crust fell into perfect position for continuing with the next step.

Unusual because of its size was the rolling pin used by Gladys Bullock of Goshen. The pin measured approximately eight inches in length and three inches or less in diameter. She explained it had been used in her family "for a very long time." Its small size made for easy handling.

While the contests were in progress, young women were busy serving the spectators with hot cider and delicious apple bars, made by 4-H members in the Hudson Valley.

The one, lone male contestant worked like an "old hand" at pastry making. Robert Black of Otsego county, a high school junior student at Morris Central School, placed second in the 1951 apple pie competition. In this year's contest, he was entered in the cherry pie division. Also in 1951, he won first place in a contest sponsored by WDOS, Oneonta. Robert's chief 4-H project, however, is raising pheasants. He receives one-day old birds from the state, without charge. For each one raised, the state pays one dollars. Last year, he raised 30 of the 33 birds received. The birds are released when eight weeks old.

Projects pursued by the young people, through their 4-H clubs, were enthusiastically described to The Freeman reporter. One might assume that baking was the foremost interest of the contestants. We learned, however, that it was but one of many projects which they pursue. Gladys Bullock of Goshen described with great pride, her Holstein cow and heifer, which took a red ribbon at the 1952 Orange county fair. Miss Bullock is 17 years old and has been a 4-H member for five years. She's working for "blue at the next county fair."

And in local group of contestants, 12-year-old Enid Goetchius has been baking pies for two years. During that period she has made pies for friends, sick persons and for the Hurley school food sales. Asked how she became interested in baking, she quickly replied, "oh, I like to eat." Another of her 4-H projects is sewing.

Village Landmark Saved

Goshen (AP)—When the village board recently found itself hard-pressed for funds to repair the village clock in the Presbyterian Church tower, out-of-town help saved the day. John W. Richardson of White Plains sent word that he would put up $600 of the estimated $1,800 repair cost because as a boy at the village school he learned to tell time by the village clock. Another Goshen native, Dr. C. Hudson Thompson, offered to match the amount as a memorial to a beloved uncle, former organist at the church. The village now thinks it may be able to scrape up the other $600 if sentiment does not move other individuals to contribute.

The teachers had their choice of attending these or any of eight other group meetings.

Kingston Fortunate

During the two-day conference, some twenty-five local citizens, including parents, businessmen, doctors and others gave their time to attend the conference as speakers in various groups. "Kingston schools are fortunate in having local citizens who will give of their time to help our schools arrive at sound educational policies", said Arthur J. Laidlaw, superintendent of schools.

Kingston Board of Education members who participated in today's session were William Rylance, Mrs. Vincent G. Connelly, Mrs. John D. Schoonmaker, Jr. and Mrs. Chester A. Baltz, Sr. General chairman of the conference was Harry T. Gumaer, MJM school principal.

Do You Remember

By SOPHIE MILLER

Many of my readers ask me, "Where do you get all the material for your column?" I tell them, it comes right from my readers. What kind of material do I like best? Well, I guess, old newspapers are my first choice, because they are nearer to the events they wrote about and dates and names are usually more accurate. Mr. Woolsey, formerly of Washington avenue sent me some old Kingston Weekly Freeman and Journals. Here is one of Dec. 12, 1889. The front page covers all the little township of Ulster county. I wish I could give all the little newsy items because no doubt each reader of this column, especially from one of those towns or villages likes to read about his particular home town. Perhaps I'll go through a few of them.

Rosendale: Heaters have been put in St. Peter's Parsonage. The new bell for St. Peter's Church is expected to arrive this week. It will be blessed by Archbishop Corrigan Sunday afternoon. It will be tolled for the first time Christmas Day.

Quarryville: Much stone is being turned out at the quarries run by Daly Hughes & Company and McLoughlin & Taylor.

Port Ewen: Edison's phonograph will be exhibited in the Reformed Church Monday evening for the benefit of the lecture-room fund....Esopus: An addition is being built to Parker's ice house ...Tannersville: 50,000 Christmas trees are being shipped to New York city. South Rondout: A post office has been established here. The name of the office is Connelly. A. D. Hamilton has been appointed postmaster.

In those days they had a column covering the Ulster County Surrogate Court. I see in one will of Cynthia Green of Kingston which was dated Feb. 28, 1871, one of the witnesses being Kate Vanderlyn. Another Vanderlyn appears on the same page, he was District Attorney Vanderlyn at the time. Artist John Vanderlyn died in 1852, this was 37 years later. Perhaps Mrs. Mary Black Terwilliger of the Senate House Museum could tell me more about Vanderlyn, the DA of Ulster county.

New Paltz State Normal School, certainly went all out for new students back in 1889. Their advertisement plainly states. "Tuition free and text-books furnished. Traveling expenses paid one way. Frank S. Capen, principal, etc." George C. Wolven was bidding for the Christmas trade with his holiday Goods" advertisement stating "Rattan rockers $1.50. Antique oak extension tables from $4.50 to $9. Six oak dining room chairs $4.50 to $6. Antique Oak bedroom suits, with oxydized handles, and including bed springs $20 to $50." If they were antique then, what are they now?

I guess no one could top Pitts' Bazaar with their holiday goods. They were advertising, 10,000 dolls from 5 cents to $5. They also plainly stated: "Our entire stock is the largest, cheapest and best this side of New York city and our prices lower than the lowest. Our goods are all sound, clean and new. No old damaged Bankrupt Stock. Pitts' Bazaar, 35 North Front street. There is a whole page covering meetings of the Board of Health. Board of Supervisors etc., which is still interesting today, will quote from it at a later date.

Why We Say--

. . . Bad air

This disease, which is actually spread by a mosquito, is derived from the Italian words "mala" and "aria" or bad air. It was originally thought that the disease was caused by the bad odors which were given off by the marshes near Rome. They did not yet know that the mosquitoes living in the marshes were the true carriers of the disease.

So He's Using It Now

Buffalo, Jan. 23 (AP) — Edward Jerzewski, chairman of the board of assessors to suburban Cheektowaga, is a man who loves to save time. Eleven years ago, someone gave him a calendar. But he never got around to using it. The calendar is perched on his desk now, perfectly usable. Jerzewski gleefully points out that the dates this year are the same as in 1942.

Why Twins?

It is estimated that about three-quarters of human twins are the result of two fertile eggs, and only one-quarter the result of a single split egg.

Remington Case Testimony Ends

New York, Jan. 23 (AP)—Testimony in the second perjury trial of William W. Remington, accused of lying about communism, was concluded in federal court yesterday.

After both sides rested, Judge Vincent L. Leibell denied a series of defense motions for dismissal of the indictment and a directed verdict of acquital. The trial was adjourned until Monday, when the case is expected to go to the jury following summations by defense and prosecution and the judge's charge.

Remington, 35-year-old former government economist, is accused of committing perjury on the witness stand at his first trial in 1951. At that trial he was convicted of perjury before a federal grand jury in denying that he ever had been a member of the Communist party. An appeals court set aside the conviction and sentence of five years and $2,000 fine on the ground the judge's charge to the jury was vague on the issue of what constituted Communist party membership.

The current five-count indictment against Remington includes an accusation that he lied in his first trial when he denied passing over government secrets to Russia.

Dr. Hall Resigns

Denver, Jan. 23 (AP)—Dr. James A. Hall, director of instruction of Denver public schools, has resigned to become superintendent of schools at Port Washington, N. Y., it was announced here. He had served in Denver schools since 1939, following 10 years of experience as teacher, principal and superintendent in smaller Colorado communities. A graduate of the University of Denver, he received his MA at Columbia University and his PhD at Denver.

Hot Stove Sparks In Baseball

Warren Spahn's league-leading strike-out mark of 183 in 1952 brought the brilliant Brave southpaw's lifetime major league total of whiffs to an even 1000. Acclaimed by many as the top left-hander in the game, Spahn has won (or shared) the NL strikeout championship for three years running. He held undisputed title in 1950 and '52 and tied for the lead with Don Newcombe in '51.

Speaking of attendance, (as everyone seems to be these days) the Cincinnati Red Stockings led the National League in 1892 with a grand total of 190,673 patrons. The league average that year was 140,668 per club.

Willard Schmidt, fire-balling young righthander who returns for another shot at a big-league berth with the Cardinals this spring, was signed sight unseen by Redbird Farm Director Joe Mathes in 1949. As if to justify the move, the youngster tossed a two-hit shutout in his professional debut with Hamilton (Ont.) of the Pony League, striking out 17 and walking none. He went on to post a 22-9 won-lost mark in his freshman year.

The top "one for the book" during the 1952 season (or any other season) was the situation arising from the Giant-Cardinal game of June 16 at the Polo Grounds wherein New York's George Spencer and the Cards' Willard Schmidt each made only one pitch and each was involved in the decision. Spencer emerged the winner and Schmidt the loser in the box score.

Troy Top Choice Over Bobby Jones

New York, Jan. 22 (AP)—Willie Troy is a lopsided choice to make it 18 straight pro wins tonight against Bobby Jones, a newcomer from Oakland, Calif., at St. Nicholas Arena.

Troy, 20-year-old Washington, D. C. Negro, is being avoided by most of the top ranking middleweights who are included in the 11-man title tournament. Only two years out of the Golden Gloves, Troy shows good two-fisted punching power and an aggressive style, a la Henry Armstrong.

"Norman Hayes didn't want to fight me," said Troy. "I see he's fighting Bobo Olson in the tournament at Boston. The big ones are ducking me."

Troy's opponent in tonight's nationally televised (NBC) 10-rounder at 10:00 p. m. (EST) is not well known in New York, although he won and lost both the state welter and middle crowns in California in his career dating back to 1945. Jones never has fought in New York. He is 27, a veteran of 57 fights with a 35-16-6 record.

Dressen Plots Relief Role Starting Jobs for Joe Black

Los Angeles, Jan. 23 (AP)—Brooklyn Manager Chuck Dressen has a super fire chief's role designed for his mound ace, Joe Black.

As a rookie last season, Joe was the team's fireman, the relief pitcher who tossed cold water on opposing batsmen when they started to get hot.

Then in a surprise move, with various ailments besetting most of the usual starters, Chuck tossed Joe in to face the New York Yankees in the opening game of the World Series.

He won that one and pitched good ball in two losing starts despite the series pressure. So Chuck figures Joe will be a starting pitcher this season, but also counts on him for some relief work.

Relief Starter

"He could take over starting jobs when we need him, then on occasion with a day's rest he could relieve," Chuck explained.

Thus Black wouldn't take a regular turn as a starter, but would periodically take over for the regulars. If a hurler couldn't take his regular turn for one reason or another—and there were plenty of them in 1952—Big Joe would go.

So he'd be sort of a reliefer and relief starter. In all events he'll be a busy flinger and not only a fireman, as in the 1952 regular season.

The Dodger skipper made his remarks before leaving for a banquet at Decatur, Ill., last night.

Black had something to say on the subject himself last night at Newark, N. J., where he received a trophy from the Newark AC as New Jersey's outstanding 1952 pro athlete.

"If Dressen finds five starters I'll be in the bullpen," he said. "If not, I'll be ready for a regular turn."

Troy Top Choice Over Bobby Jones

New York, Jan. 22 (AP)—Willie Troy is a lopsided choice to make it 18 straight pro wins tonight against Bobby Jones, a newcomer from Oakland, Calif., at St. Nicholas Arena.

Troy, 20-year-old Washington, D. C. Negro, is being avoided by most of the top ranking middleweights who are included in the 11-man title tournament. Only two years out of the Golden Gloves, Troy shows good two-fisted punching power and an aggressive style, a la Henry Armstrong.

"Norman Hayes didn't want to fight me," said Troy. "I see he's fighting Bobo Olson in the tournament at Boston. The big ones are ducking me."

Troy's opponent in tonight's nationally televised (NBC) 10-rounder at 10:00 p. m. (EST) is not well known in New York, although he won and lost both the state welter and middle crowns in California in his career dating back to 1945. Jones never has fought in New York. He is 27, a veteran of 57 fights with a 35-16-6 record.

Dressen Plots Relief Role Starting Jobs for Joe Black

Los Angeles, Jan. 23 (AP)—Brooklyn Manager Chuck Dressen has a super fire chief's role designed for his mound ace, Joe Black.

As a rookie last season, Joe was the team's fireman, the relief pitcher who tossed cold water on opposing batsmen when they started to get hot.

Then in a surprise move, with various ailments besetting most of the usual starters, Chuck tossed Joe in to face the New York Yankees in the opening game of the World Series.

He won that one and pitched good ball in two losing starts despite the series pressure. So Chuck figures Joe will be a starting pitcher this season, but also counts on him for some relief work.

Relief Starter

"He could take over starting jobs when we need him, then on occasion with a day's rest he could relieve," Chuck explained.

Thus Black wouldn't take a regular turn as a starter, but would periodically take over for the regulars. If a hurler couldn't take his regular turn for one reason or another—and there were plenty of them in 1952—Big Joe would go.

So he'd be sort of a reliefer and relief starter. In all events he'll be a busy flinger and not only a fireman, as in the 1952 regular season.

The Dodger skipper made his remarks before leaving for a banquet at Decatur, Ill., last night.

Black had something to say on the subject himself last night at Newark, N. J., where he received a trophy from the Newark AC as New Jersey's outstanding 1952 pro athlete.

"If Dressen finds five starters I'll be in the bullpen," he said. "If not, I'll be ready for a regular turn."

CCNY's Lloyd Honored By State Association

Valley Stream Man Heads State Coaches

Syracuse, Jan. 23 (AP)—Herbert Williamson of Valley Stream is the new president of the New York State Coaches Association.

The Association elected Williamson yesterday to succeed Francis Mullins of Elmira.

Samp Epolito of Granville was elected vice president and Norman Parkhurst of Endicott secretary.

The Association is among more than a dozen units meeting in conjunction with the 15th annual conference of the State Association for Health, Physical Education and Recreation.

About 2,000 teachers are attending the conference.

Suspended Phys Ed. Prof. Gets Award

Syracuse, Jan. 23 (AP) — Prof. Frank S. Lloyd, suspended as Director of Athletics at City College of New York after the basketball "fix" scandals today was presented the Distinguished Service Award of the State Association of Health, Physical Education and Recreation.

The Association, holding its annual meeting here also said it was asking members for funds to help finance legal services for Lloyd.

CCNY suspended Lloyd, basketball coach Nat Holman and assistant Coach Harry Sand last Nov. 17 after a committee of the New York City Board of Higher Education charged them with unbecoming conduct. The charges stemmed from the bribery scandals of early 1951.

All three were suspended pending a hearing. It has not yet been held.

The committee report said high school coaches had been given money and Madison Square Garden tickets so that they would "recruit promising athletes" for City College. The report said Lloyd approved such payments and also failed to report what the committee called an attempt to bribe a player in 1945.

At the time, Lloyd declined comment but made clear he would fight the charge.

In presenting the award today, the association said:

"We honor you for the excellence of your teaching and your straight thinking, but above all for your integrity as Frank Lloyd, the man."

Lloyd was cited "• • • not only for your outstanding service on many national organizations and committees • • • your contribution to the literature of the profession, but because you have always been willing to help us, the little people, in our work in New York state."

In accepting the award, Lloyd said in a prepared statement that he felt "particularly honored to be recognized by such a group and to have this recognition come at this time when questions of my personal and professional integrity have been raised."

Dukes Prefers Law to Pro Ball As First Choice

South Orange, N. J., Jan. 23 (AP)—This may come as something of a shock to supporters of the New York Knickerbockers, but Walter Dukes, talented Seton Hall basketball star, says he would prefer law school to pro basketball if he has to make a choice.

"I'd like very much to take a shot at the pro game," Dukes said after leading his team to a 103-85 victory over Memphis State last night for the Hall's 19th straight victory without loss.

"But I'm more anxious to go to law school than play basketball for only a few years. If I can work out both school and basketball, that'll be fine. But if I can't, it'll be school for me."

Dukes, 6-11 stringbean who is pacing the country's major college scorers with an average of 27.7 points per game, reportedly has been the subject of covetous glances from Ned Irish, boss of the Knickerbockers. The Knicks have been looking for a good big man for years, and Dukes would be a natural for them.

Mikan Does It

After all, if George Mikan of the Minneapolis Lakers can go to law school and play at the same time, why not Dukes?

The big boy was the star again last night as Seton Hall protected its ranking as the country's No. 1 team. He only made 25 points in the confusion of both sides tearing up and down the court, but he grabbed off 30 rebounds. The entire Memphis State team had only 23, while Duke's teammates had 27.

Dukes said he's been scoring more often this year because of the complete recovery from an injury to his foot two years ago.

"I seem to be able to balance myself better while shooting," he explained. "And I'm not fouling out as much this year as I did last year. The coach (Honey Russell) made me realize I'd have to slow up to stay in the game, so I'm not playing as aggressively as before."

Mulloy Cops Two

Orlando, Fla., Jan. 23 (AP)—Gardnar Mulloy easily brushed aside two opponents his first day in the Florida Invitational tennis tournament. The nation's top amateur netter yesterday defeated 14-year-old Lewis Leach of Orlando, 6-0, 6-0, and C. L. Varner, former state veterans' champion, also of Orlando, 6-1, 6-2.

Georgia End No. 1 In Football Draft

Philadelphia, Jan. 23 (AP)—The peaceful operation of making a bonus choice and drafting college players out of the way, National Football League owners rolled up their sleeves today and prepared for their customary knock down, dragout fight over organizational problems.

The 12 franchise owners, their general managers and coaches, drafted a total of 360 players in a 14 hour session yesterday. Fourteen of the 1952 All-America crop—including the entire offensive team— were grabbed for post graduate work in the field of football.

The biggest surprise choice in the entire draft came at the outset when the San Francisco Forty-Niners won the bonus pick and snapped up Harry Babcock, Georgia University's pass snatching end. Forty-Niner officials said they passed up the host of illustrious All-America talent to get Babcock because they need an offensive end who can catch long passes. Babcock, they said, was the best around in college ranks last year.

When Bert Bell calls the annual meeting to order for its second session, four items are certain to be brought front and center—1 a proposal to lower the player limit from 33 to 30; 2. placing of Baltimore in one of the league's two divisions; 3. The 1953 schedule, and, 4. Raising or lowering the guarantees to visiting teams. Each problem has plenty of pros and cons among the owners and squabbles appear inevitable.

CONTROVERSIAL SCARF—Scottish Nationalist Wendy Wood, above, wears one of the souvenir coronation scarves imprinted with the legend "Elizabeth I Queen of Scots," which has touched off controversy in Scotland. Nationalists claim that union of the crowns of England and Scotland occurred after the rule of the first Elizabeth. Wendy wore the scarf deep in "enemy" territory when she appeared at a Nationalist meeting in London.

PROFESSIONAL STARVER—Willie Schmitz, of Frankfurt, Germany, demonstrates what a 79-day fast does to a person. The former wrestler had himself sealed in a glass case, and charged a fee to persons who wanted to see him starve. Subsisting on mineral water and cigarets, he lost 78 pounds during the ordeal.

Australian Draws No. 1 Lane in Bid For 4-Minute Mile

Perth, Australia, Jan. 23 (AP)—John Landy, whose attempt tomorrow to set a new world record for the mile has created world wide interest, got a break today. He drew lane number one against eight other contestants for the Australian mile championship.

Thus the 22-year-old Melbourne University student should avoid any any early jostling for a clear run in his attempt to lower Gunder Haegg's world mark of 4:01.4.

Hot weather was forecast for tomorrow with a late breeze off the ocean at race time, 4:25 p. m. (3:25 a. m. EST, U. S. time).

The breeze may prove a big factor in Landy's record attempt because he will have to run against it four times. The finishing run will be into the prevailing breeze.

Red Hot Hawks Set for Lakers

(By The Associated Press)

Milwaukee's hustling Hawks take on the powerful Minneapolis Lakers at Indianapolis tonight with a chance to pull out of the Western Division cellar in the National Basketball Association.

The Hawks handed the Lakers their first home loss in almost a year last Sunday and since then have added two more victories on a quick swing east. They upset New York, 72-70, at Boston Wednesday night and whipped Philadelphia 106-100 at Philadelphia last night in overtime. Minneapolis has been idle since the Sunday shock.

Syracuse protected its Eastern Division lead with an 87-75 decision over Fort Wayne last night while second place Boston bowed to New York, 112-89. The Nationals now lead by a full game. It was their 20th straight victory at home. Red Rocha topped the Syracuse scorers with 17 points.

Max Zaslofsky poured in 26 points as the Knickerbockers whipped Boston on the strength of a fast first half. The Knicks led at the midway point, 58-35.

Danny Finn, playing his first game for Philadelphia since coming up from Scranton of the American League, scored 28 points against Milwaukee but the Hawks' Jack Nichols topped the scorers with 36 all but six in the first half.

SMART FOLKS—THOSE BUICK ENGINEERS!

They've made the 1953 BUICKS 87 ways better

OUR hat's off to the men who made the 1953 Buicks what they are—the greatest Buicks in fifty great years.

They came up with a new kind of V8 for the SUPER and the ROADMASTER—a brilliant V8 Engine with a long list of engineering "firsts."

They redesigned the F-263 Fireball 8 for record horsepower and compression in the spirited Buick SPECIAL.

They kept every inch of room in the roomiest six-passenger Sedan in America—and still shortened its turning radius considerably.

They did new wonders with the wonderful Million Dollar Ride. They stepped up visibility, comfort, handling ease, control.

And man—what they did with getaway!

They dreamed up, designed and developed a new Twin-Turbine Dynaflow Drive* that whisks you away quick as a wink—and just as smooth, almost as silent.

In fact, no other car in the world gets away with all the combined quickness, quiet and smoothness of a Twin-Turbine Dynaflow Buick.

Wouldn't you like to see for yourself just how great these Golden Anniversary Buicks really are? Drop in soon—we'll be happy to do the honors.

CCNY's Lloyd Honored By State Association

Valley Stream Man Heads State Coaches

Syracuse, Jan. 23 (AP)—Herbert Williamson of Valley Stream is the new president of the New York State Coaches Association.

The Association elected Williamson yesterday to succeed Francis Mullins of Elmira.

Samp Epolito of Granville was elected vice president and Norman Parkhurst of Endicott secretary.

The Association is among more than a dozen units meeting in conjunction with the 15th annual conference of the State Association for Health, Physical Education and Recreation.

About 2,000 teachers are attending the conference.

Suspended Phys Ed. Prof. Gets Award

Syracuse, Jan. 23 (AP) — Prof. Frank S. Lloyd, suspended as Director of Athletics at City College of New York after the basketball "fix" scandals today was presented the Distinguished Service Award of the State Association of Health, Physical Education and Recreation.

The Association, holding its annual meeting here also said it was asking members for funds to help finance legal services for Lloyd.

CCNY suspended Lloyd, basketball coach Nat Holman and assistant Coach Harry Sand last Nov. 17 after a committee of the New York City Board of Higher Education charged them with unbecoming conduct. The charges stemmed from the bribery scandals of early 1951.

All three were suspended pending a hearing. It has not yet been held.

The committee report said high school coaches had been given money and Madison Square Garden tickets so that they would "recruit promising athletes" for City College. The report said Lloyd approved such payments and also failed to report what the committee called an attempt to bribe a player in 1945.

At the time, Lloyd declined comment but made clear he would fight the charge.

In presenting the award today, the association said:

"We honor you for the excellence of your teaching and your straight thinking, but above all for your integrity as Frank Lloyd, the man."

Lloyd was cited "• • • not only for your outstanding service on many national organizations and committees • • • your contribution to the literature of the profession, but because you have always been willing to help us, the little people, in our work in New York state."

In accepting the award, Lloyd said in a prepared statement that he felt "particularly honored to be recognized by such a group and to have this recognition come at this time when questions of my personal and professional integrity have been raised."

Dukes Prefers Law to Pro Ball As First Choice

South Orange, N. J., Jan. 23 (AP)—This may come as something of a shock to supporters of the New York Knickerbockers, but Walter Dukes, talented Seton Hall basketball star, says he would prefer law school to pro basketball if he has to make a choice.

"I'd like very much to take a shot at the pro game," Dukes said after leading his team to a 103-85 victory over Memphis State last night for the Hall's 19th straight victory without loss.

"But I'm more anxious to go to law school than play basketball for only a few years. If I can work out both school and basketball, that'll be fine. But if I can't, it'll be school for me."

Dukes, 6-11 stringbean who is pacing the country's major college scorers with an average of 27.7 points per game, reportedly has been the subject of covetous glances from Ned Irish, boss of the Knickerbockers. The Knicks have been looking for a good big man for years, and Dukes would be a natural for them.

Mikan Does It

After all, if George Mikan of the Minneapolis Lakers can go to law school and play at the same time, why not Dukes?

The big boy was the star again last night as Seton Hall protected its ranking as the country's No. 1 team. He only made 25 points in the confusion of both sides tearing up and down the court, but he grabbed off 30 rebounds. The entire Memphis State team had only 23, while Duke's teammates had 27.

Dukes said he's been scoring more often this year because of the complete recovery from an injury to his foot two years ago.

"I seem to be able to balance myself better while shooting," he explained. "And I'm not fouling out as much this year as I did last year. The coach (Honey Russell) made me realize I'd have to slow up to stay in the game, so I'm not playing as aggressively as before."

Mulloy Cops Two

Orlando, Fla., Jan. 23 (AP)—Gardnar Mulloy easily brushed aside two opponents his first day in the Florida Invitational tennis tournament. The nation's top amateur netter yesterday defeated 14-year-old Lewis Leach of Orlando, 6-0, 6-0, and C. L. Varner, former state veterans' champion, also of Orlando, 6-1, 6-2.

CONTROVERSIAL SCARF—Scottish Nationalist Wendy Wood, above, wears one of the souvenir coronation scarves imprinted with the legend "Elizabeth I Queen of Scots," which has touched off controversy in Scotland. Nationalists claim that union of the crowns of England and Scotland occurred after the rule of the first Elizabeth. Wendy wore the scarf deep in "enemy" territory when she appeared at a Nationalist meeting in London.

PROFESSIONAL STARVER—Willie Schmitz, of Frankfurt, Germany, demonstrates what a 79-day fast does to a person. The former wrestler had himself sealed in a glass case, and charged a fee to persons who wanted to see him starve. Subsisting on mineral water and cigarets, he lost 78 pounds during the ordeal.

Georgia End No. 1 In Football Draft

Philadelphia, Jan. 23 (AP)—The peaceful operation of making a bonus choice and drafting college players out of the way, National Football League owners rolled up their sleeves today and prepared for their customary knock down, dragout fight over organizational problems.

The 12 franchise owners, their general managers and coaches, drafted a total of 360 players in a 14 hour session yesterday. Fourteen of the 1952 All-America crop—including the entire offensive team— were grabbed for post graduate work in the field of football.

The biggest surprise choice in the entire draft came at the outset when the San Francisco Forty-Niners won the bonus pick and snapped up Harry Babcock, Georgia University's pass snatching end. Forty-Niner officials said they passed up the host of illustrious All-America talent to get Babcock because they need an offensive end who can catch long passes. Babcock, they said, was the best around in college ranks last year.

When Bert Bell calls the annual meeting to order for its second session, four items are certain to be brought front and center—1 a proposal to lower the player limit from 33 to 30; 2. placing of Baltimore in one of the league's two divisions; 3. The 1953 schedule, and, 4. Raising or lowering the guarantees to visiting teams. Each problem has plenty of pros and cons among the owners and squabbles appear inevitable.

Australian Draws No. 1 Lane in Bid For 4-Minute Mile

Perth, Australia, Jan. 23 (AP)—John Landy, whose attempt tomorrow to set a new world record for the mile has created world wide interest, got a break today. He drew lane number one against eight other contestants for the Australian mile championship.

Thus the 22-year-old Melbourne University student should avoid any any early jostling for a clear run in his attempt to lower Gunder Haegg's world mark of 4:01.4.

Hot weather was forecast for tomorrow with a late breeze off the ocean at race time, 4:25 p. m. (3:25 a. m. EST, U. S. time).

The breeze may prove a big factor in Landy's record attempt because he will have to run against it four times. The finishing run will be into the prevailing breeze.

Red Hot Hawks Set for Lakers

(By The Associated Press)

Milwaukee's hustling Hawks take on the powerful Minneapolis Lakers at Indianapolis tonight with a chance to pull out of the Western Division cellar in the National Basketball Association.

The Hawks handed the Lakers their first home loss in almost a year last Sunday and since then have added two more victories on a quick swing east. They upset New York, 72-70, at Boston Wednesday night and whipped Philadelphia 106-100 at Philadelphia last night in overtime. Minneapolis has been idle since the Sunday shock.

Syracuse protected its Eastern Division lead with an 87-75 decision over Fort Wayne last night while second place Boston bowed to New York, 112-89. The Nationals now lead by a full game. It was their 20th straight victory at home. Red Rocha topped the Syracuse scorers with 17 points.

Max Zaslofsky poured in 26 points as the Knickerbockers whipped Boston on the strength of a fast first half. The Knicks led at the midway point, 58-35.

Danny Finn, playing his first game for Philadelphia since coming up from Scranton of the American League, scored 28 points against Milwaukee but the Hawks' Jack Nichols topped the scorers with 36 all but six in the first half.

SMART FOLKS—THOSE BUICK ENGINEERS!

They've made the 1953 BUICKS 87 ways better

OUR hat's off to the men who made the 1953 Buicks what they are—the greatest Buicks in fifty great years.

They came up with a new kind of V8 for the SUPER and the ROADMASTER—a brilliant V8 Engine with a long list of engineering "firsts."

They redesigned the F-263 Fireball 8 for record horsepower and compression in the spirited Buick SPECIAL.

They kept every inch of room in the roomiest six-passenger Sedan in America—and still shortened its turning radius considerably.

They did new wonders with the wonderful Million Dollar Ride. They stepped up visibility, comfort, handling ease, control.

And man—what they did with getaway!

They dreamed up, designed and developed a new Twin-Turbine Dynaflow Drive* that whisks you away quick as a wink—and just as smooth, almost as silent.

In fact, no other car in the world gets away with all the combined quickness, quiet and smoothness of a Twin-Turbine Dynaflow Buick.

Wouldn't you like to see for yourself just how great these Golden Anniversary Buicks really are? Drop in soon—we'll be happy to do the honors.

*Standard on Roadmaster, optional at extra cost on other Series.

$486,722 Liens Face Costello in RevenueStatement

Newark, N. J., Jan. 23 (AP)—Frank Costello, bigtime gambler now serving a prison term for contempt, has been slapped with income tax liens totalling nearly $500,000.

The Bureau of Internal Revenue filed the liens here yesterday, and as a result any assets Costello may have in Essex county are tied up until he settles his account with tax authorities.

The liens total $486,722.64. The largest, for $211,677.59, covers Costello's 1944 income. A 1945 lien is for $137,562.03. His wife, Loretta, also is named in one of the liens, that of 1942, for $98,561.37. Other liens are for 1942, $19,316.39; and 1941, $19,605.16.

Tax officials said the liens originated with the Internal Revenue Bureau's New York office, where similar action was instituted against the gambler. Costello must satisfy the claims within 10 days, the government said, or action will be taken to seize his assets.

Costello was sentenced to prison for refusing to answer questions before the Senate Crime Investigating Committee. He is serving an 18 month term in the Federal Correctional Institute at Milan, Mich., and has filed for parole.

Shokan, Jan. 23—Betty Gruber, one of Kingston's best known uptown business women, was a weekend guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Elmendorf in the village center.

Cards have been received from Adaline Beldin, a native of Olive who for many years has made her home in Flint, Mich. Mrs. Beldin, who will be 85 years old January 29, is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Rogers who lived in South Hollow, not far from the Denning town line.

Huge truckloads of oak logs are being hauled daily from the West Hurley sector to one of the Marbletown sawmills by way of the dividing weir bridge of the reservoir. There has also been some trucking of sycamore or buttonball to some point up the Onteora Trail. These trees used to grow to immense size down along the Butternutkill and the Esopus Creek, in the old villages, but there are hardly any left in this immediate section.

Stewart Winchell, whose death at Jackson, Mich., was reported here earlier in the month, was a son of William and Carrie Stewart Winchell, whose home lay along the mountainside near the Thankful Elmendorf farm, or present Stanley Matthews property. He was about 82 years old and is survived by a son Franklin and a daughter Gladys. Following his marriage to Inez Markle of Shokan, he was employed in New York and later removed to Michigan.

Neighboring Delaware county, whence come many of the numerous big milk trucks which daily rumble through Shokan, crowded out St. Lawrence county as top producer of the New York milkshed for November. Delaware in that one month produced 2.3 million pounds (count 'em) of milk more than the upstate county which previously had been tops for seven consecutive months.

The town of Olive has lost two of its successful farmers in the death of Merritt Winchell and Charles Greene, on Sunday and Tuesday, respectively. One of Merritt's sisters is Mrs. John Toman who formerly resided at Ashokan for several years. The Winchell stone farmhouse in Olive Bridge probably is the oldest building in the reservoir country; it is said to have been a tavern in Revolutionary War years when the Shokan-Stone Ridge road was the most traveled highway in these parts.

Charles Greene had been in poor health for the past several years. One of four children of George and Mary Tyler Greene, his boyhood farm home was about half a mile north of the present dividing weir bridge. He married Emily Bishop of the same neighborhood and they bought the John Brown place along the Plank road in the early 1900's. He was a pioneer here in the growing of small fruits and berries and was very successful in this line together with dairying and poultry on a small scale. Mr. and Mrs. Greene and their son Marvin practiced intensive farming and sold practically all of their produce at the farmhouse.

Ever notice how the homeward-bound traffic of skiing cars picks up around 4 o'clock of a Sunday afternoon? The tip-off to this sudden exodus from the mountains comes from "Mountaineer," gifted and always interesting columnist of the Catskill Mountain News, who says that promptly at 4 comes the order over the loudspeaker system to "Sweep the trails" (after several warning signals of course) and then, on the minute, the chair lift, the platter pull and the rope tow, all stop dead. Next appear the ski patrol of some 20 persons, who go up into the clouds" and scan the great trail for any of the 1500 skiers who may have belatedly come to grief by the wayside. Thus, with the "sweeping" of the trail, the ski day ends, and hundreds of cars begin pouring out of the upper Esopus Valley. (Sounds reasonable, eh?)

$486,722 Liens Face Costello in RevenueStatement

Newark, N. J., Jan. 23 (AP)—Frank Costello, bigtime gambler now serving a prison term for contempt, has been slapped with income tax liens totalling nearly $500,000.

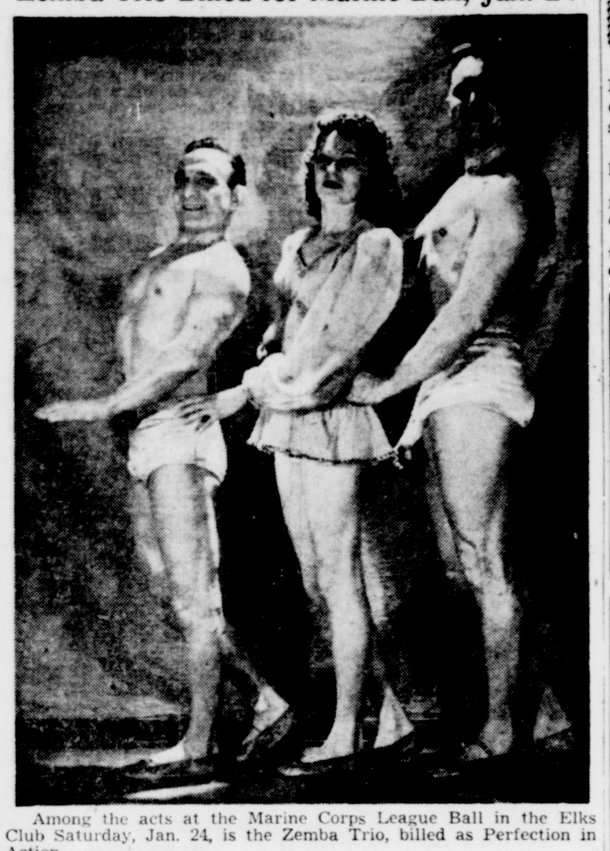

The Bureau of Internal Revenue filed the liens here yesterday, and as a result any assets Costello may have in Essex county are tied up until he settles his account with tax authorities.

The liens total $486,722.64. The largest, for $211,677.59, covers Costello's 1944 income. A 1945 lien is for $137,562.03. His wife, Loretta, also is named in one of the liens, that of 1942, for $98,561.37. Other liens are for 1942, $19,316.39; and 1941, $19,605.16.

Tax officials said the liens originated with the Internal Revenue Bureau's New York office, where similar action was instituted against the gambler. Costello must satisfy the claims within 10 days, the government said, or action will be taken to seize his assets.

Costello was sentenced to prison for refusing to answer questions before the Senate Crime Investigating Committee. He is serving an 18 month term in the Federal Correctional Institute at Milan, Mich., and has filed for parole.

Seven Doctors Back On Hospital Staff

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Jan. 23 (AP) —Seven doctors say they have been reappointed to the staff of St. Francis Hospital, a Roman Catholic institution which last year told them either to resign from the staff or withdraw from the Dutchess County League for planned parenthood.

Contraceptives and other mechanical methods of birth control are forbidden by Catholic doctrine.

The doctors' statement yesterday that they had been restored to staff privileges brought no comment from hospital authorities.

In New York city the Planned Parenthood Federation of America said in a statement:

"It is indeed a happy conclusion to an unfortunate situation.

The seven doctors who said they received their reappointment notices were:

Florence Gottdiner, William W. Bennett, Albert Rosenberg, and Gordon MacKenzie, who did not resign from the League, and John D. Rogers, Paul Lass and Martin Leiser, who did resign last year from the parenthood organization.

Seven Doctors Back On Hospital Staff

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Jan. 23 (AP) —Seven doctors say they have been reappointed to the staff of St. Francis Hospital, a Roman Catholic institution which last year told them either to resign from the staff or withdraw from the Dutchess County League for planned parenthood.

Contraceptives and other mechanical methods of birth control are forbidden by Catholic doctrine.

The doctors' statement yesterday that they had been restored to staff privileges brought no comment from hospital authorities.

In New York city the Planned Parenthood Federation of America said in a statement:

"It is indeed a happy conclusion to an unfortunate situation.

The seven doctors who said they received their reappointment notices were:

Florence Gottdiner, William W. Bennett, Albert Rosenberg, and Gordon MacKenzie, who did not resign from the League, and John D. Rogers, Paul Lass and Martin Leiser, who did resign last year from the parenthood organization.
